Please email your completed Entry & Submission Form by no later than 5pm to Frances Revel,

This category is new for 2020, and seeks to celebrate the best, most innovative and insightful use cases of the organic chatter found on social media sites from Facebook to Snapchat and everything in between. The research could use syndicated social scraping, harvesting and analysis platforms or proprietary methods developed by the agency or media owner for looking at this data in a new way.

Judges will look for entries which make sense out of big data, show how traditional or new methods can be employed to unearth insights from the online world, and those which have had a significant impact upon media strategy, planning, buying, sales or creative executions.
