2) I need to record the video & podcast for the previous thread before I start this one.

Q's recent mention of Red_Red brings up a number of old posts and a series of social media responses that will take some time to explain.

Sit tight while I get the info put together.

3) You may have noticed that since Robert Mueller's testimony, the President has taken a more aggressive stance toward his enemies.

POTUS knows of their corruption but he wasn't able to openly point it out or have it prosecuted until the Mueller investigation was over.

4) If POTUS took action against corrupt people while going through the Mueller investigation, the media & Congress would have accused him of retaliation & obstruction.

So he had to submit to the Mueller investigation while the prosecution of their crimes had to be put on hold.

5) Now that the Mueller investigation [blockade] has been removed, we're entering the Justice phase of Trump's presidency. I think we can expect him to be more open about corrupt public figures, as we've recently seen with his statements about Obama, Hillary and Elijah Cummings.

6) The justice phase means old posts by Q that we've been waiting to see action on will be brought up by Q because they're going to be put into action soon.

7) I'll be bringing up old posts by Q that are relevant to current or future events. I'll do my best to point out dates but you may want to be mindful of dates on posts while reading my threads.

8) Q has said that everything he posts has meaning.
Some have taken that to mean everything he posts has a meaning to us and we must discover it.

Based on that understanding, they've developed systems of interpretation that assign a meaning to every post.

9) I don't know if everything posted by Q is intended to have a meaning for us.
Some posts seem to be communications to operators working with Q which may require a KEY before they can be correctly decrypted.

10) This post from November of 2017 seems to have a coded message embedded in the text but parts of it seem to have a meaning that could be deciphered without a decryption key.

11) A week after posting the above message, when no one had correctly picked up on the meaning, Q began dropping clues to hep anons decode the stringer.
The first clue was that the word "green" referred to a man named Captain Mike Green.

> Bunker Apple Yellow Sky [... + 1]
> Yes.

> Do you believe in coincidences?
> Learn how to read the map.
> Q

12) The next post by Q asked anons to consider what was posted prior to the stringer, what key words were contained in the stringer and why they were included.

Everything has meaning.

This was Q's first lesson where he helped anons interpret a coded stringer.

13) The full decode of this post is too long to include here. (It will be covered in a chapter in my first Q book which will be published soon.)

I shared the above posts to illustrate the fact that some stringers which seem to be purely operational are meant for us to decode.

14) Last night, Q added a number of posts to the /patriotsfight/ board.

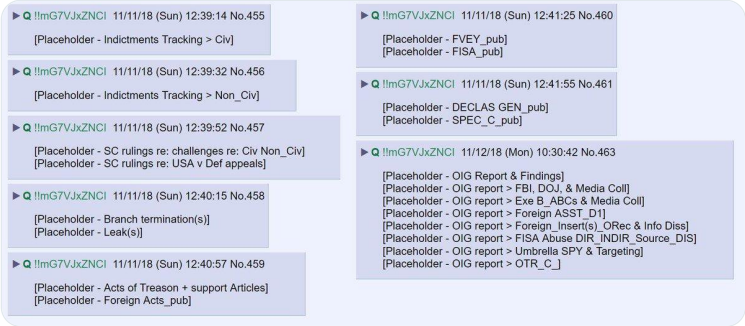

Anons can respond to Q's posts on the /Qresearch/ board but /patriotsfight/ is Q's private board.
No one can respond to posts on /patriotsfight/.
/PF/ posts have a 3 digit post number.

15) The first /PF/ post last night was another placeholder to go with the many other placeholders that were posted last November.

> [Placeholder - [DECLAS] Exculpatory Evidence [Illegal Hold-Non_Report] FISA_T_SURV]

16) The new post seems to refer to the (soon) declassification of the transcript of a conversation George Papadopoulos had which was submitted to the FISA court to obtain a warrant to spy on the Trump campaign but the FBI illegally omitted exculpatory evidence.

17) These are the other placeholders currently on /patriotsfight/

18) This just in:

19) A "placeholder" is a message from Q that holds the place or acts as a reminder (or predictor) of posts that are to come that have to do with the subject of the placeholder.

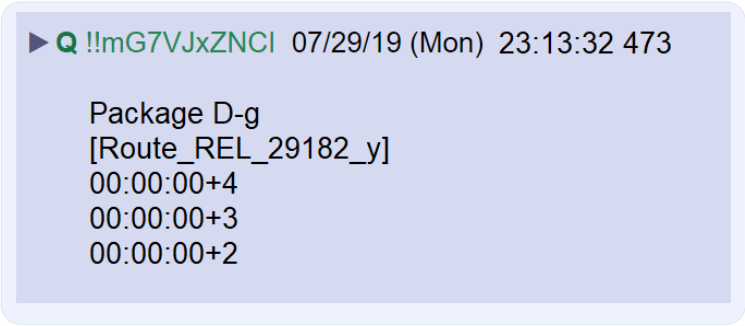

Note: The post number of the above placeholder is 472.

20) Last night, Q posted this message.

It appeared on /patriotsfight/ only briefly and then Q removed it.
It was removed so quickly most sites that aggregate Q posts didn't pick it up.

(It's not unusual for Q to remove posts from /PF/)

I have no guess as to its meaning.

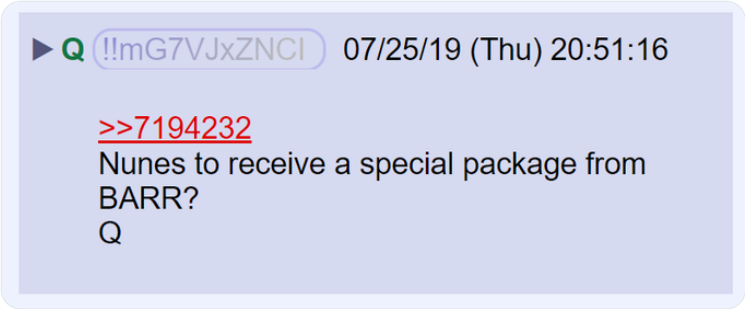

21) I have a possible decode.

Q used the word "package" in this post.

In the above post, what if D = Devin Nunes

g = given

is a countdown to the day the package is utilized.
Today would be +1
Tomorrow would be zero-day.

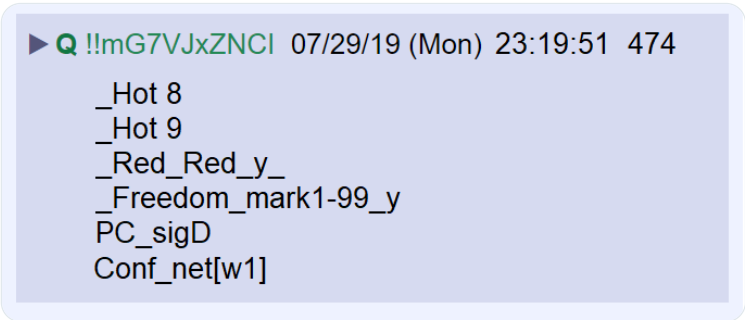

22) This is post 474 on /PF/

Consider the possible meanings for the word "Hot"
What about the numbers 8 and 9
(Is July = 7?)

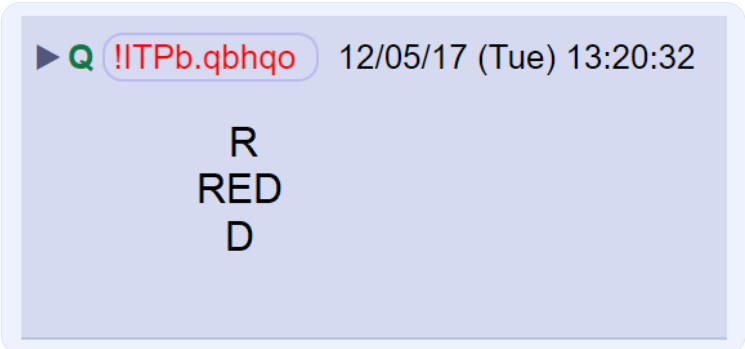

What about "Freedom," "mark" and 1-99?

What about Conf?

Has Q used "Red_Red" before?
What does it refer to?

23) What would this post refer to?

24)

▶ Anonymous 12/05/17 (Tue) 14:47:29

Q laid it out as Red Cross.
>>38627

25)

▶ Anonymous 12/05/17 (Tue) 13:23:08

>>38627
Yep. RED_RED_ = RED CROSS.

26) I believe the post from the 29th suggests something is about to happen regarding the Red Cross.

My suspicion is that 8 and 9 refer to the months of August and September.

Is Q signaling a 60-day window for action to take place that involves "freedom?"

Grassley, Thompson Reintroduce American Red Cross Transparency Act

May 21, 2019

WASHINGTON – U.S. Sen. Chuck Grassley of Iowa and Rep. Bennie Thompson of Mississippi today introduced legislation to give the congressional watchdog arm complete access to American Red Cross records for oversight purposes. The bipartisan, bicameral American Red Cross Transparency Act of 2019 responds to concerns that the Red Cross tried to quash a review by the Government Accountability Office (GAO) of its practices, successfully limiting the scope of the review, and has failed to be as transparent as it should be.

"The American people rely on the Red Cross to respond when tragedy strikes. It is congressionally-chartered and is a federal instrumentality. It receives federal tax dollars for some of its disaster responses, and it receives the financial benefits of tax exemption and tax-deductible donations. For those reasons, Congress has a responsibility to make sure the Red Cross answers questions asked on the public's behalf and is operating up to the standards required of it during national disasters," Grassley said. "The Red Cross has shown an unwillingness to answer questions in the past. This legislation strengthens transparency to help make the Red Cross more accountable to the public."

"The Red Cross has been a component of disaster response for decades, but that does not put them above Congressional oversight. The public should know how the Red Cross spends both taxpayer dollars and the funds Americans generously donate. With Hurricanes Katrina, Sandy and Harvey and the 2010 Haiti earthquake, we have seen the Red Cross struggle to fulfill its disaster response mission," Thompson said. "As the demands on our disaster response systems have intensified, and with the frequency and intensity of natural disasters having increased, it is critical that the Red Cross is able to fulfill its mission and that Congress and the American public have a window of transparency into the organization. Our legislation will ensure that the Red Cross' past attempts to scuttle necessary oversight won't work again."

The American Red Cross Transparency Act gives the GAO complete access to the Red Cross' records when needed to conduct oversight. If the Red Cross refuses to comply, the legislation provides the GAO with the authority to bring an action in court to force compliance.

More than a decade ago, Congress gave the GAO the broad authority to "review [Red Cross'] involvement in any Federal program or activity the Government carries out under law." Despite clear legislative intent, the Red Cross essentially stonewalled GAO when it tried to carry out an investigation requested by Thompson in September 2013. After two years of stall tactics, delays and a request from the Red Cross' president that Thompson cancel his GAO request and conduct future oversight via cell phone, the GAO analyzed information the Red Cross begrudgingly made available to complete its investigation. Grassley explored the GAO access problem as part of his inquiry of problems with the Red Cross' Haiti earthquake response. He sent the results as a memo to his fellow committee members on both the Judiciary and Finance committees in 2016.

The legislation is available here.

34) The 3rd link is to a 300+ page letter from Chuck Grassley to Senate Finance and Judiciary Committees about his findings regarding the way American Red Cross spends money and problems he's seen with transparency.

Dear Fellow Committee Members:

I am writing in regards to my investigation into the American Red Cross (ARC) to share the results. ARC is a congressionally chartered instrumentality of the United States Government and was originally chartered in 1900.[1] ARC performs valuable work across the United States and the world, conducting disaster response and other relief activities. Many thousands of Americans have donated time, energy, and money to its cause. As expressed on ARC's website, it is different from other congressionally chartered organizations because it "maintains a special relationship with the federal government" as a federal instrumentality that is required to "carry out responsibilities delegated to [it] by the federal government."[2] Given that role, Congress plays an important function in maintaining effective oversight of the organization. The Judiciary Committee has jurisdiction over congressional charters and the Finance Committee has jurisdiction over tax-exempt entities. Thus, I am transmitting this memorandum to members of both Committees.

In the immediate aftermath of the Haiti earthquake in 2010, ARC started the Haiti Assistance Project (HAP) to provide medical, food, and housing assistance for the displaced and vulnerable Haitian people. ARC received donations from all over the world totaling approximately $487 million to fund HAP. In some respects, HAP was successful; it funded food rations for over 1 million people and built thousands of temporary shelters across Haiti.[3]

Secret texts cast light on UK's early role in Trump-Russia inquiry

Senior MI5 and FBI officials shared concerns about 'our strange situation' in 2016

https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2019/jul/30/secret-texts-cast-light-uk-early-role-t…

Two of the most senior intelligence officials in the US and UK privately shared concerns about "our strange situation" as the FBI launched its 2016 investigation into whether Donald Trump's campaign was colluding with Russia, the Guardian has learned.

Text messages between Andrew McCabe, the deputy director of the FBI at the time, and Jeremy Fleming, his then counterpart at MI5, now the head of GCHQ, also reveal their mutual surprise at the result of the EU referendum, which some US officials regarded as a "wake-up call", according to a person familiar with the matter.

While Russia had previously been viewed as a country that would seek to interfere in western elections, the Brexit vote was viewed by some within the FBI as a sign that Russian activities had possibly been successful, the person said.

Their exchanges offer new insights into the start of the FBI's Russia investigation, and how British intelligence appears to have played a key role in the early stages.

In one exchange in August 2016, Fleming noted that members of the FBI and MI5 had "met on our strange situation", a veiled reference to discussions about Russian activities, according to the source.

Q said there is.

59) Here are all the questions and answers from last December's Q & A session.

60) Q reposted a previous post and warned us to expect another push of the narrative that Voter ID laws are intended to suppress the minority vote.

61) An anon noticed that The Hill wrote an article about POTUS tagging an account that follows Q.

62) The Hill's article claimed Voter ID laws may reduce ballot access to students, low-income and minority voters.

"Trump has periodically called for stricter voter ID laws, which advocates warn could restrict ballot access in low-income communities, students and people of color."
Like Clockwork.
ID required (when)?
Sheep follow the most absurd arguments.
D_party voter corruption on display.
Q

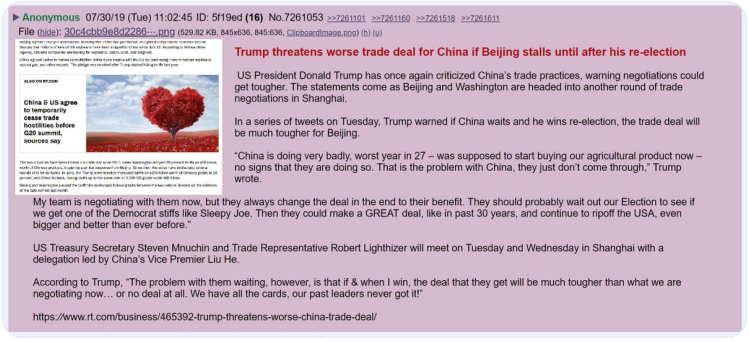

63) It is acceptable to require an ID for these activities but not for voting?

Why do Dems resist voter ID?
Who would not be able to obtain a voter ID?

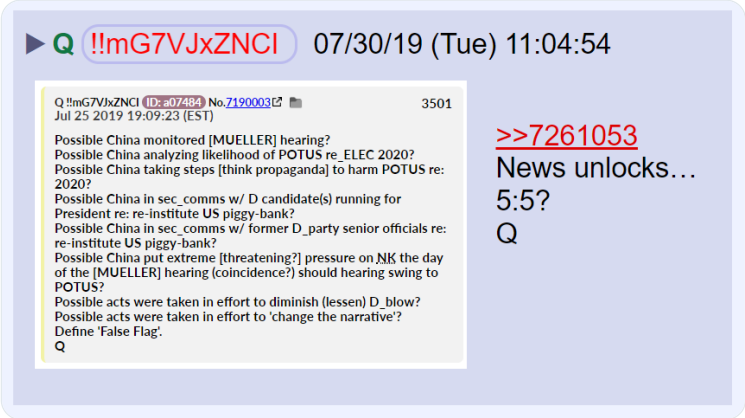

64) An anon posted the text of an article quoting POTUS and his view that China is waiting to pull the trigger on trade deal hoping a Democrat will win the White House in 2020.

Trump has warned China the longer they wait, the worse their trade deal will be (if one is made).

65) The news confirms what Q told about last week that China has been closely monitoring the situation here, looking for an opportunity to restore the trade relationship they had under prior administrations that were much more favorable to them.

5:5 = loud a clear / understood

66) @VictoriaRGates was Q'd for her graphic showing the things that require an ID.

Logical Q.
Q

68) @BattleBornThom was Q'd for asking Why does the Red Cross have all this money?
Where is it going?

70) I'd like to go back to a previous post.

I'm not sure what this post refers to but it mentions "D-g" and seems to involve a countdown.

71) This is another post that appeared briefly on /patriotsfight/ and was taken down by Q.

Note that it mentions "D-g." like the post above.

How do you decrypt a coded message?
You insert the decryption KEY.

I don't understand this post but it's worth thinking about.
