[1] Andrew McCabe launched an investigation against Jeff Sessions.

Why did the swamp oppose him as AG?

Sessions appointed Huber and had oversight (OS) of him.

Sessions cleaned out corrupt people in FBI & DOJ

Sessions minimized leaks.

Why did McCabe investigate Sessions?

He perceived him to be a threat.

5) You capture a dangerous animal by deception.

POTUS needed the deep state to think it was still in control.

In November of 2017, Q hinted that Sessions secretly appointed a US Attorney outside of DC to prosecute corruption.

Months later, the world learned about John Huber.

Q IITPb.qbhqo Nov 14 2017 12:51:10

How do you capture a very dangerous animal?
Do you attack it from the front?
Do you walk through the front door?
Do you signal ahead of time you will be attacking?
How do you distinguish between good and bad?
Who do you trust to keep secrets?
How do you prevent leaks?

What show is being put on by AG Sessions since his confirmation?
What show is being put on by POTUS since AG Sessions' confirmation?

Why was AG Sessions' confirmation challenged heavily?
Why was RR's confirmation smooth and easy?
What was the vote count for RR?
Nothing is as it appears.
What was the DC vote breakdown between Trump & Clinton?
What is the nickname for DC?
Why would sealed indictments be outside of DC jurisdiction?
What purpose would this serve?

Have faith, Patriots.

Dear Mr. Evers:

This is a supplemental response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated November 22, 2017, in which you requested various records pertaining to the Department's November 13, 2017 response to Rep. Robert Goodlatte's July 27, 2017 and September 26, 2017 letters, specifically, records reflecting guidance to prosecutors who have been directed to evaluate certain issues raised in Congressman Goodlatte's letters. This response is made on behalf of the Offices of the Attorney General (OAG) and Deputy Attorney General (ODAG).

We issued a response to you in this request (the "Guidance" request) and three related requests on July 16, 2018. Subsequently, we issued a supplemental response for these four requests on October 31, 2018, providing you with additional records located after re-running searches necessitated by the need to remedy a technical issue. Recently, we became aware of additional material responsive to the "Guidance" request that was not located in our previous searches, consisting of six pages.

I have determined that these six pages are appropriate for release in full, and copies are enclosed.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(c) (2012 & Supp. IV 2016). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

If you have any questions regarding this response, please contact Michael Gerardi of the Department's Civil Division, Federal Programs Branch, at (202)-514-0680.

Sincerely,

Vanessa R. Brinkmann

Hon. John W. Huber
United States Attorney for
The District of Utah
111 South Main Street
Suite 1800

Dear Mr. Huber:

In consultation with the Deputy Attorney General, I have requested that you review the matters referenced in the enclosed November 13, 2017, letter from Assistant Attorney General Stephen Boyd to House Judiciary Committee Chairman Robert Goodlatte and make recommendations to me or the Deputy Attorney General, as appropriate. Your review need not include matters that you determine are within the scope of the investigation being conducted by Special Counsel Robert Mueller.

Your recommendations should include whether any matters not currently under investigation warrants the opening of an investigation, whether any matters currently under investigation require further resources or further investigation, and whether any matters would merit the appointment of a Special Counsel.

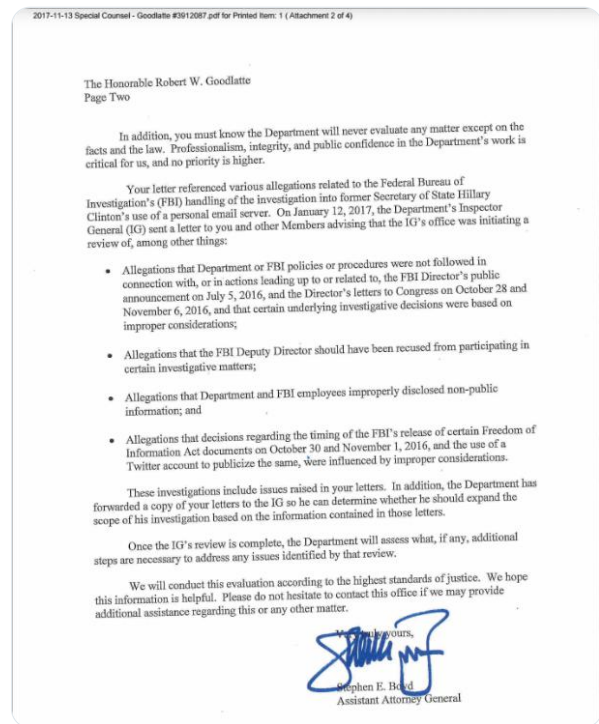

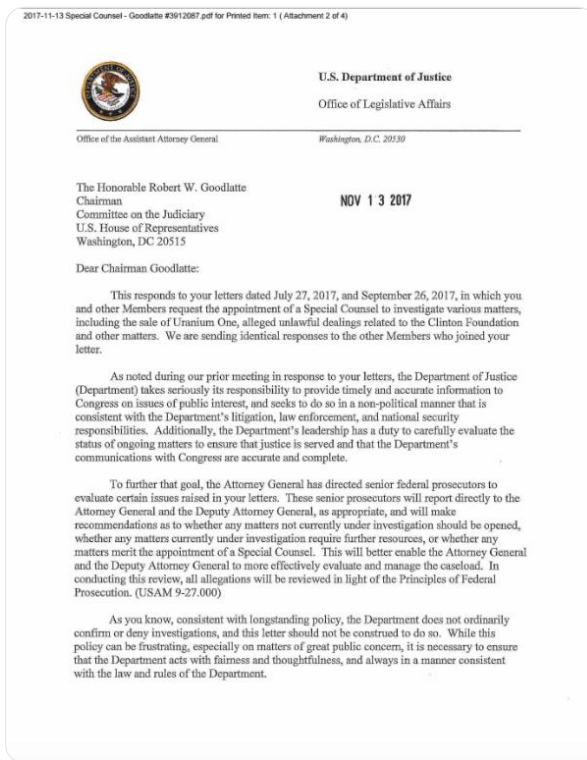

Sincerely,

15) Also included is the letter from Associate Attorney General Stephen Boyd to Bob Goodlatte explaining that "Senior Federal Prosecutors" had been assigned to investigate matters Goodlatte and others had raised including the sale of Uranium One and the Clinton Foundation.

16) Also included in the above link is a screenshot of an email header from Matt Whitaker to John Huber confirming the letter he had sent (Whitaker was Sessions' Chief of Staff at the time) about matters they had previously discussed.

17) The FOIA request was made in November of 2017 but the letter to Huber was only released by the DOJ two days ago.

It Exists: DOJ Finds Letter Ordering Scrutiny of Uranium One, Hillary Clinton
Then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions wrote the letter on Nov. 22, 2017 for Utah U.S. Attorney John Huber. Read it here.

58) Why does Zuckerberg take such unusual measures to protect himself like hiring armed guards, installing bulletproof glass in his office and having an escape chute?

Mark Zuckerberg's conference room has a secret 'panic chute,' report says

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg has been accused of a lot of things, but a new report details just how far he is willing to take his privacy and safety: he reportedly has a "panic chute."

<https://www.foxnews.com/tech/mark-zuckerbergs-conference-room-has-a-secret-panic-chute-report-says>

<https://www.foxnews.com/tech/mark-zuckerbergs-conference-room-has-a-secret-panic-chute-report-says>

An in-depth investigation from Business Insider looked at the company's security practices, Zuckerberg is said to have a number of different measures to protect himself, including a "Praetorian Guard" (implemented in case an employee tries to rush him when he's at a company all-hands meeting), as well as the aforementioned "panic chute."

"He also has access to a large glass-walled conference room in the middle of the space near his desk that features bullet-resistant windows and a panic button," the news outlet wrote in its story. "There's a persistent rumor among Facebook employees that he has a secret 'panic chute' his team can evacuate him down to get him out of the office in a hurry. The truth of this matter remains murky: One source said they had been briefed about the existence of a secret exit route through the floor of the conference room into the parking garage, but others said they had no knowledge of it."

MARK ZUCKERBERG LAYS OUT VISION FOR 'PRIVACY-FOCUSED' SOCIAL NETWORKING

In addition to the aforementioned measures, Zuckerberg takes extreme precautions protecting himself and his family. He has armed officers on constant guard outside of his gated Bay Area homes, one of which may also contain a panic room, Business Insider reported. If Zuckerberg attends a bar, his security team sweeps it to make sure it's safe; they also look into any new doctors to vet them, as well as instructors if Zuckerberg begins a new hobby.

He also has a personal driver, with the security team monitoring traffic and adjusting the route if needed, the report said.

59) What does [MZ] fear most?

<https://pbs.twimg.com/media/D1U8ZsrV4AEFisk.png>

60) Q asked about members of Congress and whether they need a security clearance.

They do not.

Some committee members must take an annual oath but there are no laws requiring security clearances for members of the House or Senate.

Do Members of Congress Have Security Clearances?

Members of Congress, even those with sensitive committee appointments, are not required to undergo a security clearance investigation.

<https://news.clearancejobs.com/2012/05/16/do-members-of-congress-have-security-clearances/>

<https://news.clearancejobs.com/2012/05/16/do-members-of-congress-have-security-clearances/>

The topic of security clearance for elected officials has long been a complex one. Members of congress – even those in sensitive committee positions – do not receive or obtain security clearances in the same way that a member of the public would go about obtaining a security clearance based on job or military requirement.

Through the process of election and selection to a seat in the House of Representatives or Senate comes with it a certain public seal of access to information of a sensitive nature. (Few voters likely think about this when they vote, but it's a key reason trustworthiness often plays a major role in politicking). Both the House and Senate do have security offices and staff – with the responsibility for overseeing access to classified information, among other things.

According to the CIA's Center for the Study of Intelligence: “There are no written rules, agreed to by both branches, governing what intelligence will be shared with the Hill or how it will be handled. The current system is entirely the product of experience, shaped by the needs and concerns of both branches over the last 20 years.”

House members, beginning with the 104th Congress, do have to take a secrecy oath. Members of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence – the committee with oversight over intelligence agencies including the CIA and NSA – have a separate oath, commensurate with their unique access to sensitive information. Again, these oaths take the way of a public pledge, vice the arduous security-clearance process, complete with SF86, undertaken by the average security-cleared professional.

House and Senate staff members with a need to access classified information are required to obtain security clearances. The Office of Senate Security and Office of House Security, respectively, have oversight over the security clearance process for congressional staffers, and background investigations are conducted by the FBI.

With increased congressional oversight of sensitive national security issues – and more scrutiny on both the issues and need for access – the congressional security clearance procedures have come under scrutiny in recent years.

An August 2011 CRS report proposed mandating security clearances for all members of congress. Despite several proposals and wrangling on both the legislative and executive sides (due to accusations of leaked information coming from both branches), requirements for members of congress or elected officials to obtain security clearances have never been passed.

SOFT ROBOTS THAT can grasp delicate objects, computer algorithms designed to spot an “insider threat,” and artificial intelligence that will sift through large data sets – these are just a few of the technologies being pursued by companies with investment from In-Q-Tel, the CIA’s venture capital firm, according to a document obtained by The Intercept.

Yet among the 38 previously undisclosed companies receiving In-Q-Tel funding, the research focus that stands out is social media mining and surveillance; the portfolio document lists several tech companies pursuing work in this area, including Dataminr, Geofeedia, PATHAR, and TransVoyant.

"Yes, I could be rendered by the CIA. I could have people come after me. Or any of the third-party partners. They work closely with a number of other nations. Or they could pay off the Triads. Any of their agents or assets," he said.

"We have got a CIA station just up the road - the consulate here in Hong Kong - and I am sure they are going to be busy for the next week. And that is a concern I will live with for the rest of my life, however long that happens to be."

Having watched the Obama administration prosecute whistleblowers at a historically unprecedented rate, he fully expects the US government to attempt to use all its weight to punish him. "I am not afraid," he said calmly, "because this is the choice I've made."

He predicts the government will launch an investigation and "say I have broken the Espionage Act and helped our enemies, but that can be used against anyone who points out how massive and invasive the system has become".

By 2007, the CIA stationed him with diplomatic cover in Geneva, Switzerland. His responsibility for maintaining computer network security meant he had clearance to access a wide array of classified documents.

That access, along with the almost three years he spent around CIA officers, led him to begin seriously questioning the rightness of what he saw.

He described as formative an incident in which he claimed CIA operatives were attempting to recruit a Swiss banker to obtain secret banking information. Snowden said they achieved this by purposely getting the banker drunk and encouraging him to drive home in his car. When the banker was arrested for drunk driving, the undercover agent seeking to befriend him offered to help, and a bond was formed that led to successful recruitment.

"Much of what I saw in Geneva really disillusioned me about how my government functions and what its impact is in the world," he says. "I realised that I was part of something that was doing far more harm than good."

He said it was during his CIA stint in Geneva that he thought for the first time about exposing government secrets. But, at the time, he chose not to for two reasons.

First, he said: "Most of the secrets the CIA has are about people, not machines and systems, so I didn't feel comfortable with disclosures that I thought could endanger anyone". Secondly, the election of Barack Obama in 2008 gave him hope that there would be real reforms, rendering disclosures unnecessary.

He left the CIA in 2009 in order to take his first job working for a private contractor that assigned him to a functioning NSA facility, stationed on a military base in Japan. It was then, he said, that he "watched as Obama advanced the very policies that I thought would be reined in", and as a result, "I got hardened."

104) Q has hinted that Snowden although a contractor working for the NSA, was actually coordinating with Brennan & the CIA to destroy the reputation of NSA. It logically follows that the Shadow Brokers would also be a CI_A operation but is there evidence of that?

105) Background on the Shadow Brokers:

In August of 2016, three years after Snowden released his info on the NSA, an online person or group known as the "Shadow Brokers" dumped executable NSA programs on the internet.

Alleged NSA hackers probably gave away a small fortune by leaking exploits

Anonymous hackers probably gave away hundreds of thousands of dollars in potential sales when they leaked valuable cyberweapons allegedly stolen from the National Security Agency.

<https://www.cio.com/article/3110906/alleged-nsa-hackers-probably-gave-away-a-small-fortune-by-leaking-exploits.html>

106) The files were mostly zero-day exploits—programs that take advantage of software defects. These specific programs were designed to exploit firewall and router products from Cisco, Fortinet and other vendors.

107) The Shadow Brokers claimed that their files came from the NSA's Tailored Access Operations. (TAO is an elite hacking unit that develops and deploys some of the world's most sophisticated software exploits, making the files worth a lot of money on the black market.)

108) The August release was a sample of files the Shadow Brokers claimed to have. They set up an online auction and said if 1 million bitcoins were pledged, they would release their entire arsenal of files. The auction drew little interest.

109) 5 months later, after the auction failed (and it may have only been for show), the Shadow Brokers (in what they said would be a farewell) released more hacking tools. These exploits affected mostly older versions of Microsoft Windows.

<https://www.pcworld.idg.com.au/article/612703/suspected-nsa-tool-hackers-dump-more-cyberweapons-farewell/>

110) Why older versions of Microsoft Windows?

Because the files were taken in 2013 around the same time Snowden left the NSA with his classified information.

111) An anon wondered about that.

True hackers would take advantage of their stolen files immediately.

If it was about money, they would have made hundreds of thousands or even millions of dollars in 2013 but they waited 3 years.

This is by far, the most interesting release from Shadow Brokers as it does not only contain tools—but also materials describing the most complex and elaborate attack ever seen to date. A multi stages attack bypassing Cisco ASA Firewall appliances, exploiting and infecting Windows servers in order to copy Oracle databases of multiple hosts belonging to a SWIFT Service Bureau part of the internal financial system.

The last time a nation-state used multiple Odays to target another country's critical infrastructure was when Stuxnet was launched targeting Iran's nuclear enrichment program. NSAs modus operandi is to gain total access and hack , using multiple Odays, an entire infrastructure of the intended target. In this case, if Shadow Brokers claims are indeed verified, it seems that the NSA sought to totally capture the backbone of international financial system to have a God's eye into a SWIFT Service Bureau—and potentially the entire SWIFT network. This would fit within standard procedure as a covert entity entrusted with covert actions that may or may not be legal in a technical 124) Bruce Schneier did a great job of eliminating likely suspects in the Shadow Brokers hacking spree concluding that one of the most likely suspects is Harold Martin.

Who Are the Shadow Brokers?

What is—and isn't—known about the mysterious hackers leaking National Security Agency secrets

<https://www.theatlantic.com/technology/archive/2017/05/shadow-brokers/527778/>

So, how did the Shadow Brokers do it? Did someone inside the NSA accidentally mount the wrong server on some external network? That's possible, but seems very unlikely for the organization to make that kind of rookie mistake. Did someone hack the NSA itself? Could there be a mole inside the NSA?

If it is a mole, my guess is that the person was arrested before the Shadow Brokers released anything. No country would burn a mole working for it by publishing what that person delivered while he or she was still in danger. Intelligence agencies know that if they betray a source this severely, they'll never get another one.

That points to two possibilities. The first is that the files came from Hal Martin. He's the NSA contractor who was arrested in August for hoarding agency secrets in his house for two years. He can't be the publisher, because the Shadow Brokers are in business even though he is in prison. But maybe the leaker got the documents from his stash, either because Martin gave the documents to them or because he himself was hacked. The dates line up, so it's theoretically possible. There's nothing in the public indictment against Martin that speaks to his selling secrets to a foreign power, but that's just the sort of thing that would be left out. It's not needed for a conviction.

If the source of the documents is Hal Martin, then we can speculate that a random hacker did in fact stumble on it—no need for nation-state cyberattack skills.

<https://pbs.twimg.com/media/D1agJIAUwAAnnQz.png>

125) While attempting to trace the source of the Shadow Brokers leak in the summer of 2016, the FBI was alerted by the NSA to twitter communications between Martin and Russia-based Kaspersky Labs. Martin claimed to have information about NSA hacking tools.

126) The twitter comms between Martin and Kaspersky labs happened just before Shadow Brokers publicly announced they had stolen NSA hacking tools.

127) The FBI requested a search warrant for Martin's home. A judge granted the request believing Martin was likely to be involved with the Shadow Brokers.

Ex-NSA Contractor Was a Suspect In Shadow Brokers Leak

New court document shows law enforcement suspected possible involvement of Harold Martin in Shadow Brokers' release of classified NSA hacking tools.

<https://www.darkreading.com/attacks-breaches/ex-nsa-contractor-was-a-suspect-in-shadow-brokers-leak/d/d-...>

<https://www.darkreading.com/attacks-breaches/ex-nsa-contractor-was-a-suspect-in-shadow-brokers-leak/d/d-id/1333576>

Court Filings

In a 19-page opinion, the US District Court for the District of Maryland recently denied Martin's bid to suppress the evidence from his home as well as cell-site location information collected from his mobile service provider. However, the court upheld Martin's motion to suppress his statements to the FBI on the grounds that it was obtained without a Miranda warning.

The latest court document does not shed much new light on Martin's involvement in the Shadow Brokers leak, but it does make clear that the raid on his house, and the subsequent arrest, happened because law enforcement at least suspected his involvement in the matter.

The court's document shows that the August 2016 raid on Martin's home was prompted by some Twitter messages that Martin posted suggesting he had knowledge about the NSA hacking tools. The Twitter messages were posted shortly before the Shadow Brokers publicly leaked the first set of tools and announced their intention to auction off the rest.

The FBI used that fact to justify its request for a warrant to collect information associated with Martin's Twitter account and for a separate warrant to search Martin's resident, person, and vehicles. In making a case for the search warrants, the government also showed that Martin, in his role as an NSA contractor, had had access to the hacking tools that the Shadow Brokers had put up for sale.

"In this case, there was a substantial basis for the Magistrate's finding of probable cause to issue the search warrant for information associated with the Defendant's Twitter account," District Judge Richard Bennett wrote in explaining his decision to deny Martin's motion to suppress evidence. The fact that Martin posted his messages just hours before Shadow Brokers made it publicly available, combined with his access to the documents also made the warrant justifiable, the judge said.

"Thus although the Defendant's Twitter messages could have had any number of innocuous meanings in another setting, these allegations regarding the context of Defendant's messages provide a substantial basis for the Magistrate's conclusion that there was a "fair probability" that evidence would be found in Martin's possession, he said.

How "omnipotent" hackers tied to NSA hid for 14 years—and were found at last

"Equation Group" ran the most advanced hacking operation ever uncovered.

131) The NSA and FBI haven't said that Martin is connected to the Shadow Brokers (at least not publicly).

132) Why did Snowden release the "code words" in Russia

Why did the Shadow Brokers release executable files from Russia?

Who gave the source code to the Shadow Brokers?

Define spook.

Do "Spooks" hide in the "Shadows"?

Stand Strong Gina.

133) Gina Haspel, the current head of the CI_A.

I believe the Shadow Brokers is yet another clown op designed to discredit and damage the NSA.

Haspel was tasked with minimizing the damage rogue operators do while the agency is being dismantled.

John Perry Barlow Dead: 5 Fast Facts You Need to Know

1. The Cause of Death Was Not Immediately Clear but Barlow Had Health Problems in Recent Years

How John Perry Barlow died was not immediately clear, but his health had not been good in recent years. In 2015, a heart attack led to other health issues and saddled Barlow with heavy medical bills.

He wrote about the heart attack on social media, saying, "I was dead for about 8 minutes on Wed eve. Total cardiac arrest. Hard to recall. It sleep now. And said to report no Ascending Light."
