2) James Comey tried to encourage Trump haters around the world today with his unique brand of delusional optimism by trumpeting the good news of Robert Mueller's testimony before Congress. (Mueller is scheduled to testify on Wednesday.)

James Comey ✓
@Comey

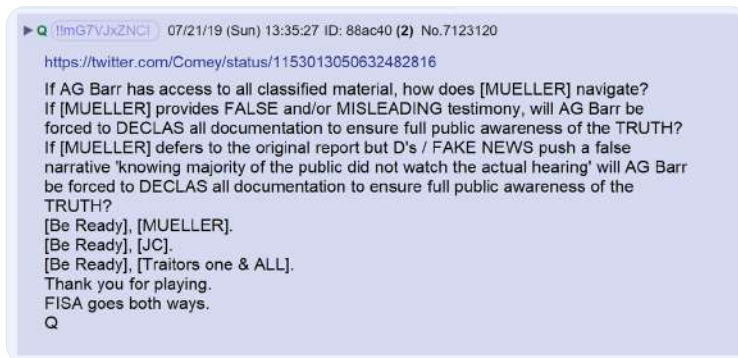

This week, an American patriot takes center stage: he doesn't want attention; has principles and follows them; and always tells the truth. What an opportunity for young people to be inspired. What a great opportunity for both parties in Congress to follow his example.

11) There are many good people who believe that Robert Mueller is secretly working with the President. One line of reasoning to support that argument is the fact that the appointment of Mueller as Special Counsel took the investigation of Donald Trump away from Andrew McCabe.

12) Adherents to this theory also point out that Mueller came up with nothing against Trump. Rather than the deep state indicting or impeaching POTUS, they ended up clearing his name.

13) Q has hinted that perhaps POTUS met with Mueller the day before he was appointed Special Counsel to for a purpose that has not yet been disclosed.

14) Q has hinted that Mueller went after people who were planted inside the Trump campaign and that General Flynn is safe because he is a patriot.

16) Q admitted he had been providing conflicting information about Mueller's true allegiance but the confusion serves a purpose. Since bad actors monitor his posts, he's given them (and us) a lot of disinformation to work with.

17) Keep in mind the fact that the disinformation Q provides is not harmful to us if we believe it, Frustrating perhaps, but not harmful. It's designed in such a way that if it is only harmful if it is believed and acted upon by the President's enemies.

18) In November of 2018, Q changed his tune about Robert Mueller. He told us Mueller would face charges for his involvement in the Uranium One scandal during Obama's presidency. For the last 8 months, [Mueller] has been placed in brackets (a kill box) when mentioned by Q.

19) Mueller went far outside the typical actions of a Special Counsel. Although it is not a prosecutors job to exonerate the subject of an investigation, he claimed he could not exonerate POTUS of obstruction of justice.

'Not Exonerated' Is Not a Standard Any Free Country Should Accept | ...
 That's not how it works in America.
<https://www.nationalreview.com/corner/not-exonerated-is-not-a-standard-any-free-cou...>

20) The second part of Mueller's report outlined the evidence his team considered regarding obstruction of justice. It seems William Barr was hired as AG, partly because of his interpretation of the obstruction statute.

21) Mueller tried to build a case for obstruction of justice using a flawed interpretation of the statute.

Barr seems to have brought an end to Mueller's investigation by imposing a more accepted, traditional view of the obstruction statute on Mueller's team.

22) Not being satisfied with Barr's interpretation of the obstruction statute, Mueller put the evidence he felt supported obstruction in part 2 of his report and gave it to Congress, hoping they would run with it.

23) After submitting his report, if Mueller were a normal Special Counsel, he would have gone back to his private life. But he's not your garden variety Special Counsel.

24) His public address in May seemed pointless but it fired up the President's enemies in Congress and that seemed to be the goal.

<https://www.youtube.com/embed/3DWzzMIMIRI>

25) Mueller doesn't have to appear before Congress but his testimony this week seems to be part of a larger plan to keep the anti-Trump suspicion going and feed the Russia hysteria we've watched for the last 2 years.

26) A Maggie Haberman tweet was posted by Q.

(Haberman is a reporter for the New York Times).

27) The New York Times article tweeted by Haberman claims murder suspect Anthony Comello's mental instability was facilitated by his use of internet message boards. They also claim his hands had "symbols and phrases associated with Qanon" on them.

QAnon, a baseless conspiracy theory that originated on internet message boards, played a key role in Mr. Comello's descent into mental instability, his lawyer said. At Mr. Comello's first court appearance in March, he displayed symbols and phrases associated with QAnon scrawled on his hand in pen. He first began to take an interest in political conspiracy theories, Mr. Gottlieb said, in the weeks after Mr. Trump's 2016 election.

"Mr. Comello's support for 'QAnon' went beyond mere participation in a radical political organization," Mr. Gottlieb wrote. "It evolved into a delusional obsession."

Driven by that obsession, Mr. Gottlieb said, Mr. Comello began early this year to attempt citizen's arrests of people he believed to be associated with the deep state. In February, Mr. Comello twice tried to conduct his own arrest of Mayor Bill de Blasio, including

"The [Mueller] report presents very substantial evidence that the president is guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors and we have to present—or let Mueller present those facts to the American people and then see where we go from there," House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerrold Nadler said on "Fox News Sunday." "Because the administration must be held accountable and no president can be above the law."

Mueller, though, has signaled his reluctance to testify before Congress.

"There has been a discussion about an appearance before Congress. Any testimony from this office would not go beyond our report. It contains our findings and analysis, and the reasons for the decisions we made. We chose those words carefully and the work speaks for itself," Mueller said in May.

39) The classified mission involves the installation of a Sensitive Compartmented Information Facility (SCIF) at Davison Army Airfield at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2019-07-22/army-lets-slip-that-it-s-conducting-secret-operation-around-d-c>

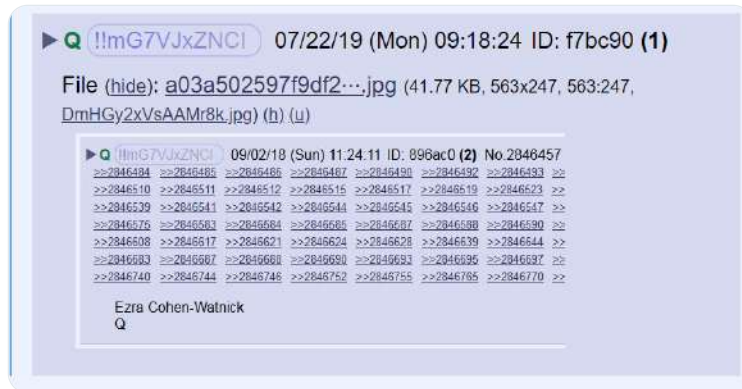

"Soldiers from assault helicopter company and aviation maintenance units will be supporting the mission with 10 UH-60s and maintenance capabilities for four months," according to the document, referring to the Black Hawks. The money will also pay for a specialized "Sensitive Compartmented Information Facility" at Davison Army Airfield at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, just outside Washington.

Army spokesman Wayne Hall declined in an email to comment on some possibilities - including whether the mission involved protecting the White House or other federal buildings and whether it's making use of specialized commando units of the Pentagon's Joint Special Operations Command, which includes the Army's Delta unit and Navy's Seal Team Six.

Hall said the operation began early in the fiscal year, which started Oct. 1, and "the duration of the mission is undetermined."

40) Q reposted a drop from last September that simply contained the name Ezra Cohen-Watnick.

I believe he's connected to the classified Army operation.

41) Ezra Cohen-Watnick served on the President's National Security Council as the senior director for intelligence programs.

He is one of the most mysterious people on earth.
This is one of the only known photos of him on the internet.

42) This article provides background info on the mysterious Ezra Cohen-Watnick.

43) The author's negative view of the President and Cohen-Watnick, was evident by their comment that POTUS made "baseless" claims Obama had spied on him.

The author also mentioned claims that Susan Rice had unmasked Trump associates in intelligence reports for political reasons

The incident, coming in the aftermath of Trump baselessly accusing his predecessor of wiretapping Trump Tower, became one of the first dust-ups related to the investigations into possible Russian collusion during the 2016 campaign that have gripped the White House. The president later accused Rice of having committed a crime; for her part, Rice has denied that she ordered the unmasking for political purposes.

44) It was Ezra Cohen-Watnick who provided a classified briefing to Devin Nunes about the unmasking done by Susan Rice.

The Man McMaster Couldn't Fire

Thirty-one-year-old Ezra Cohen-Watnick holds the intelligence portfolio on the National Security Council—but almost everything about him is a mystery.

<https://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2017/07/ezra-cohen-watnick/534615/>

Bannon and Ledeen may be wary of talking about Cohen-Watnick after his first, and thus far only, turn in the national spotlight. Washington got its first real look at Cohen-Watnick when he was identified as one of two White House sources who provided House Intelligence chairman Devin Nunes with evidence that former national security adviser Susan Rice requested the “unmasking” of the names of Trump associates in intelligence documents. In the intelligence world, incidental collection refers to intelligence agencies obtaining, in the course of monitoring foreigners, communications that either refer to or involve Americans, whose names are typically “masked” unless officials request that they be “unmasked.”

45) It was the New York Times that broke the story about Cohen-Watnick briefing Devin Nunes.

The Times attempted to portray the Obama administration's actions as perfectly normal and those of Trump allies as borderline treasonous.

2 White House Officials Helped Give Nunes Intelligence Reports

The revelation fueled criticism that Representative Devin Nunes has been too eager to do the White House's bidding, not run an independent investigation

<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/03/30/us/politics/devin-nunes-intelligence-reports.html?...>

46) Newsweek framed the delivery of classified intelligence from Cohen-Watnick to Nunes as some sort of illicit conspiracy while insisting the surveillance and unmasking of Trump associates were necessary parts of the Russia investigation.

Meet Ezra Cohen-Watnick, Donald Trump's invisible man in the White ...

Inside the mysterious rise of Ezra Cohen-Watnick, the young NSC official at the center of a bizarre Russiagate subplot.

All of which makes the town an unlikely launch pad for Ezra Cohen-Watnick, the suddenly prominent White House National Security Council official at the center of a bizarre backdoor maneuver to provide House Intelligence Committee Chairman Devin Nunes with top-secret documents on government surveillance. Cohen-Watnick reportedly retrieved the documents from a classified CIA terminal in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building next to the White House and gave them to Nunes, a California Republican who had been a member of Trump's transition team. They were intended to prove that former President Barack Obama was "wire tapping" Trump during the 2016 campaign. The documents did no such thing, other members of the panel concluded after studying them. What they actually showed is that U.S. intelligence agencies did have Trump's associates on their radar—but only because they were tracking Russian agents.

47) People look at the news and when they see no arrests being made, they tend to assume nothing is happening.

Q reminds us that arrests cannot be made until corruption is first removed from the legal system (FBI/DOJ/Courts).

48) The war against corruption is primarily an intelligence war. The winner will be the one who has the best intelligence and the one who uses it most effectively against their opponent.

No one has better intelligence than the NSA.
And POTUS is their Commander in Chief.

49) It is the unseen and unheard ones who are the most dangerous in this war. Not the people on TV or in Congress but the ones behind keyboards. Intelligence operators like Ezra Cohen-Watnick

50) Indictments are piling up in the offices of people who aren't on talk shows. People who (so we are told) are doing nothing. People whose teams don't leak information.

51) Some of the most effective people in this war play seemingly insignificant roles. Their actual contributions may never be fully disclosed.

52) Ezra Cohen-Watnick has been criticized for his lack of time in the field but no one can question his patriotism or his loyalty to the President. That's why he was appointed to be the National Security Adviser for the Attorney General.

57) Thomas Jefferson had the cabal's leader, former Vice-President Aaron Burr, arrested and indicted for treason.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Burr_conspiracy

Burr conspiracy

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Burr conspiracy was a suspected treasonous cabal of US planters, politicians, and army officers in the early 19th century. The alleged cabal was led by Aaron Burr, the former Vice President of the United States (1801–1805). According to the accusations against him, his goal was to create an independent country in the center of North America including the Southwestern United States and parts of Mexico. Burr's version was that he intended to farm 40,000 acres (160 km²) in the Texas Territory which had been leased to him by the Spanish Crown.

President Thomas Jefferson ordered Burr arrested and indicted for treason, despite a lack of firm evidence. Burr's true intentions remain unclear to historians; some claim that he intended to take parts of Texas and the Louisiana Purchase for himself, others, that he intended to conquer Mexico, and yet others, that he planned to conquer most of the North American continent. The number of men backing him is also unclear, with accounts varying from fewer than forty to over seven thousand. He was acquitted of treason, but the trial destroyed his already faltering political career.

It is one of the most enduring and consequential mysteries of the Trump-Russia investigation: Why did former FBI Director James Comey refuse to say publicly what he was telling President Trump in private -- that Trump was not the target of an ongoing probe?

That refusal ignited a chain of events that has consumed Washington for more than two years -- including Comey's firing by Trump, the appointment of Special Counsel Robert Mueller, and ongoing claims that Trump obstructed justice.

Now an answer is emerging. Sources tell RealClearInvestigations that Justice Department Inspector General Michael Horowitz will soon file a report with evidence indicating that Comey was misleading the president. Even as he repeatedly assured Trump that he was not a target, the former director was secretly trying to build a conspiracy case against the president, while at times acting as an investigative agent.

Two U.S. officials briefed on the Inspector general's investigation of possible FBI misconduct said Comey was essentially "running a covert operation against" the president, starting with a private "defensive briefing" he gave Trump just weeks before his inauguration. They said Horowitz has examined high-level FBI text messages and other communications indicating Comey was actually conducting a "counterintelligence assessment" of Trump during that January 2017 meeting in New York.

65) Sperry notes that although the Horowitz report will focus mainly on allegations of FISA abuse, he has been told it will also examine whether Comey misled Trump and whether he leaked classified information to the media.

Although Horowitz has focused primarily on whether the FBI misled the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court in its applications for surveillance warrants against former Trump campaign adviser Carter Page, he has pursued other related angles, including whether Comey personally misled the president and leaked classified FBI information about him, the officials said.

An attorney for Comey declined to answer emailed questions regarding the Horowitz investigation. The following account, drawn from officials briefed on the IG's work and other sources, provides details of Comey's actions between Trump's election and his dismissal by the president.

Comey's White House Source

Anthony Ferrante: FBI agent in the White House, now contracted with BuzzFeed to try to verify the Steele dossier. For months, a source said, an NSC supervisor couldn't get rid of him. nsaconference.com public notice

At the same time Comey was personally scrutinizing the president during meetings in the White House and phone conversations from the FBI, he had an agent inside the White House working on the Russia investigation, where he reported back to FBI headquarters about Trump and his aides, according to officials familiar with the matter.

The agent, Anthony Ferrante, who specialized in cyber crime, left the White House around the same time Comey was fired and soon joined a security consulting firm, where he contracted with BuzzFeed to lead the news site's efforts to verify the Steele dossier, in connection with a defamation lawsuit.

Knowledgeable sources inside the Trump White House say Comey carved out an extraordinary new position for Ferrante, which allowed him to remain on reserve status at the FBI while working in the White House as a cybersecurity adviser.

"In an unprecedented action, Comey created a new FBI reserve position for Ferrante, enabling him to have an ongoing relationship with the agency, retaining his clearances and enabling him to come back in [to bureau headquarters]," said a former National Security Council official who requested anonymity.

67) The agent, Anthony Ferrante left the White House and the bureau shortly after Comey was fired. He used his stint at the White House to pad his resume. He now manages a cybersecurity firm.

Anthony J. Ferrante is a Senior Managing Director and the Global Head of Cybersecurity at FTI Consulting. Mr. Ferrante is an expert in data privacy and cybersecurity resilience, prevention, response, remediation, and recovery services.

Mr. Ferrante has more than 20 years of top-level cybersecurity experience, providing incident response and preparedness planning to more than 1,000 private sector and government organizations, including more than 175 Fortune 500 companies and 70 Fortune 100 companies.

Mr. Ferrante maintains first-hand operational knowledge of more than 60 criminal and national security cyber threat sets, and extensive practical expertise researching, designing, developing and hacking complex technical applications and hardware systems.

Mr. Ferrante advises clients on data privacy compliance and risk management, specifically addressing issues related to data transfer, employee access, vendor management, marketing, and cloud computing.

Prior to joining FTI Consulting, Mr. Ferrante served as Director for Cyber Incident Response at the U.S. National Security Council at the White House where he coordinated U.S. response to unfolding domestic and international cybersecurity crises and issues. Building on his extensive cybersecurity and incident response experience, he led the development and implementation of Presidential Policy Directive 41 – United States Cyber Incident Coordination, the federal government's national policy guiding cyber incident response efforts.

68) Ferrante is also a law enforcement analyst for CNN.

69) After leaving the White House, Ferrante worked briefly at BuzzFeed before managing the Cybersecurity firm.

Ferrante was replaced at the White House by Jordan Rae Kelly.

Kelly didn't last long. After she left, she went to work for Ferrante's cybersecurity firm.

70) The report says that Trump's National Security Council division supervisor wasn't able to fire Ferrante.

71) One of Ferrante's pals at the National Security Council was Tashina Gauhar.

According to Sperry, Gauhar is still employed at the DOJ.

Working with Comey liaison Ferrante at the NSC in early 2017 was another Obama holdover – Tashina Gauhar, who remains a top national security adviser at the Justice Department.

In January 2017, Gauhar assisted former acting Attorney General Sally Yates in the Flynn investigation. Later, she helped Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein resist, initially, Trump's order to fire Comey. Gauhar also took copious notes during her meetings with White House lawyers, which were cited by Mueller in the section of his report dealing with obstruction of justice.

72) Q regularly updates the list of employees fired or removed from the DOJ & FBI.

In February's update, we were asked to track and follow a few remaining people including Tashina Gauhar.

Nothing being done?
FAKE NEWS?
Q.

73) People are likely wondering why Tash Gauhar is still at the DOJ.

The process of cleaning out corruption takes time. Gauhar was listed as "in the batter's box" meaning, she will at some point, be leaving at by the tone of this message, she will likely face justice.

Statement release 10.9.18 [p. AUTHORITY!]
General Statement:
We understand that there is extreme fatigue and frustration re: the wheels of justice [slow].
Exclude emotion and personal desire, instead use logic and critical thinking based on situational awareness [undo a lifetime of evil & corruption [infestation] in the span of less than 2 years w/ a corrupt DOJ & FBI in place?].
[Process & Planning – Law and Order]
[Military OP]
How can you make arrests [non military] prior to first fully cleaning out corrupt elements [at the top] of those departments [FBI][DOJ] that oversee 'investigation & prosecution' in the United States [they [themselves] are the very ones engaged in the illegal treasonous acts]?
James Comey, Director – FIRED
Andrew McCabe, Deputy Director – FIRED
Jim Rybicki, Chief of Staff and Senior Counselor – FIRED
James Baker, General Counsel – FIRED

Sally Moyer
How do you ensure those prosecuted [non military] would receive an impartial judgement based on the RULE OF LAW?
Think Federal Judge rulings [obstruction] [POTUS' granted CONSTITUTIONAL authority].
How do you ensure 'appeals' to the U.S. Supreme Court are evaluated impartially > based on the RULE OF LAW?
Think Justice K (5 to 4).
Military Law v Criminal Law
