
COLOMBIA
TRAVEL INSPIRATION

YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT

Colombia has emerged in the last few years as one of the most exciting destinations in Latin America and the world.

Colombia is the world's second most biodiverse country and has the largest diversity of birds in the world thanks to it's five regions. Each region is completely unique, and home to various fascinating cultures, including over 80 different indigenous tribes.

Each destination has its unique gastronomy, handcrafts, architecture, traditions, dances and musical rhythms. That's why they call Colombia the Land of a Thousand Rhythms.

After the historic peace agreement in 2016, Colombia has become a vibrant, safe and fun country – and one of the top gastronomic destinations in Latin America with 10 of Latin America's Best Restaurants.

The striking contrasts between destinations makes it feel like traveling to many countries inside one. True travelers always fall in love with Colombia and its people… so don't be afraid – the only risk is wanting to stay.

Dry season: December – March • Sunny days and lower humidity across much of the country. The best time to visit the Caribbean coast and blue skies over the Andes.

Green season: April – June • Bright, fresh mornings with short tropical showers in the afternoons. Landscapes are especially green, waterfalls are at their fullest, and cities remain very enjoyable for cultural visits.

"Veranillo" Dry season: July – August • Great conditions, with less crowds, light afternoon rains in the Andes, and minimal rain on the Caribbean coast. Humpback whales gather on the Pacific coast, and Caño Cristales comes alive with vivid colour.

Rainy season: October – November • More consistent rainfall, usually in brief bursts rather than all-day storms. The countryside is lush and vibrant, and visitor numbers are lower. The Caribbean coast remains warm year-round, with occasional showers.
