<https://bit.ly/Q-alerts>

My theme: Who is Rachel Chandler

2) I write about Q but I have a specific audience that I'm called to write for. Most anons who've been on the chans for years won't find my threads all that interesting.

But that's okay because they're not my primary audience.

3) My primary audience is the broader population. People who know very little about 4chan, 8chan and the subjects of pedophilia and the occult which are explored on those networks.

4) My calling is to write for "normies." People who stumbled upon Q and are trying to learn about a world they were largely ignorant of one year ago.

5) Speaking from personal experience, I can tell you that normies are easily repulsed by sensationalism, gore and the wild, unsupported claims that are often made by people who research and report on this subject.

6) Early in Q's mission, we were warned about the dangers of presenting too much difficult information to normies too quickly. normies reject such information as unbelievable, even when presented with facts and evidence.

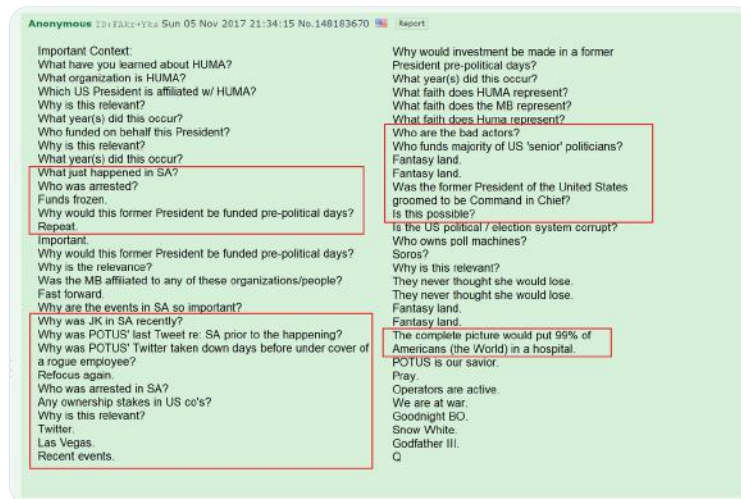

7) Truthers tend to think everyone wants to know the truth. But the truth is—most people prefer to believe that the world is exactly as they think it is, regardless of whether their view of the world reflects reality.

8) Q said 99% of the world's population would end up in a hospital if they were confronted with the truth. For that reason, it's necessary to present information to normies in a way that allows them to adjust their thinking a little at a time.

9) A handful of powerful people control the world by controlling our elected leaders. Elected leaders are usually controlled via blackmail after being caught in compromising situations—many times, through a setup designed to capture them on film engaging in illegal activities.

10) US and UK politicians were controlled through such an operation based in Saudi Arabia [SA] The arrest of Saudi princes and the freezing of their assets cut the strings of control to many politicians.

11) Prior to the Saudi purge of 2017, sex with and marriage to children in Saudi Arabia was commonplace.

12) Crown Prince Muhammad bin Salman has brought many reforms to the kingdom of Saudi Arabia including a ban on marrying children under the age of 15.

<https://www.msn.com/en-ae/news/middleeast/saudi-arabia-just-banned-child-marriages-under-15-years-of-age/ar-BBS6fof>

13) Jeffrey Epstein's island is alleged to be a situation where politicians and other powerful people have been filmed in compromising situations and the evidence of their indiscretions has been used against them to control them.

14) A judge must decide if documents in Epstein's case revealing the identities and activities will be made public. If they are, the world will be confronted with a little more truth than they may be comfortable with.

Mystery parties seek secrecy in Jeffrey Epstein-related suit

The two said they could face embarrassment if the court makes public records from the suit, which accused a longtime Epstein friend of engaging in sex trafficking.

<https://www.politico.com/story/2019/03/20/jeffrey-epstein-related-lawsuit-1229908>

15) In the first week of November of 2017, Q foreshadowed the kingdom of Saudi Arabia. A short time later, news broke about the arrest of many corrupt princes and businessmen there.

16) Throughout his operation, Q has foreshadowed many other subjects and events, including peace talks with North Korea, the end of the Iran deal and restructuring the Federal Reserve.

By foreshadowing, Q gets us thinking about & researching items that will be in the headlines.

17) When Q brings up a new subject, we don't know if it'll become a news item in 2 days, 2 months or 2 years. I usually do some preliminary research, put it in a file, make a mental note of it then wait for further information from Q.

18) Q foreshadowed Rachel Chandler last April and asked anons to do a little digging to see what they could learn about her. There was also a warning to people connected to her: "None are safe."

Look up Ray.Chandler.

None are safe.

Q

19) Most people who have been researching Q have acquired information about Rachel Chandler.

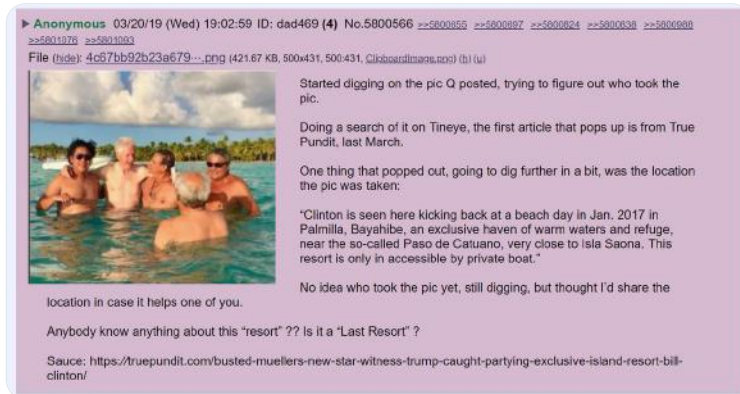

Now we have a warning from Q that her story may hit the headlines if the Judge in Jeffrey Epstein's case makes public certain documents.

20) This post was the current lead in to the Rachel Chandler connection regarding Jeffrey Epstein.

21) An anon posted this yesterday, explaining what had been discovered so far about the people in the picture and the location.

22) Q responded with several questions meant to get people digging.

Q posted a link that leads to Chandler's Tumblr page and a suggestion to check the flight logs. (The link to which Q posted a couple days ago.)

23) A warning:

I would advise when researching and reading social media posts pertaining to these people, avoid engaging in harassing, threatening or intimidating behavior. Don't tag them in comments. Observe quietly. Make notes. Rest assured justice is coming.

CHANDLER

The Photographer and Casting Director on the Future of Faces

Interview: Zina Cline-Todd
Images/Photos Courtesy Of: Midland Management & Casting

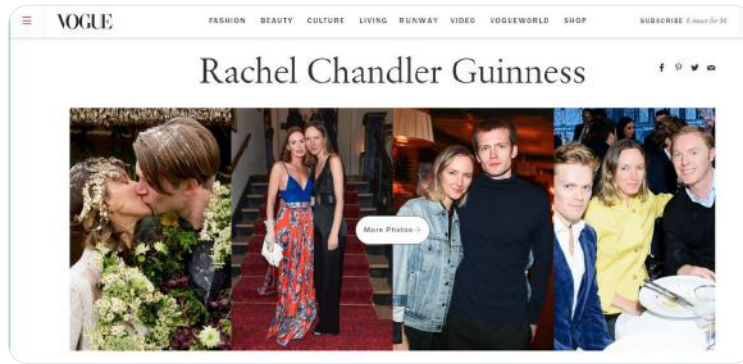

After her role as a fashion photographer led to gigs finding models for Balenciaga and Hood by Air, Rachel Chandler co-founded the agency Midland last year with her partner Walter Pearce. Its roster of "non-models" speaks to a context where democratized media outlets, like Instagram, have changed the pace and patina of image-making in fashion—more, faster, realer. The last of which is the most difficult to put a finger on. Brands ask Chandler for "real women" all the time, but even she admits that this is no simple feat to define. As a photographer, she is drawn to kids who make her and Pearce stand out on the street. "We see people who are kids we believe in. Who deserve to be photographed. None are full time models," Chandler says. "And the job can give you a lot of satisfaction. It's pretty fucking rad to tell a broke kid they're about to make $10,000!"
