My Theme: Shadow Presidency

2) Using information gleaned from recently declassified transcripts this post paints a picture of how the Obama administration set up an illegal surveillance operation against Donald Trump.

I'll explain each line in this post to the best of my ability in the tweets that follow.

3) When the Democratic National Committee emails were published by Wikileaks in the summer of 2016, a narrative was developed that they were stolen by Russia.

The forensic evidence available in the public domain refutes the idea that the DNC emails were hacked by Russia.

4) Intelligence community experts determined that it was impossible for Russia to have hacked the DNC emails. The transfer speed could only have been accomplished by a locally connected storage device and the copying was done on the east coast of the U.S.

SUBJECT: Was the "Russian Hack" an Inside Job?

Executive Summary

Forensic studies of "Russian hacking" into Democratic National Committee computers last year reveal that on July 5, 2016, data was leaked (not hacked) by a person with physical access to DNC computer. After examining metadata from the "Guccifer 2.0" July 5, 2016 intrusion into the DNC server, independent cyber investigators have concluded that an insider copied DNC data onto an external storage device.

Key among the findings of the independent forensic investigations is the conclusion that the DNC data was copied onto a storage device at a speed that far exceeds an Internet capability for a remote hack. Of equal importance, the forensics show that the copying was performed on the East coast of the U.S. Thus far, mainstream media have ignored the findings of these independent studies [see here and here].

Independent analyst Skip Földen, who retired after 25 years as the IBM Program Manager for Information Technology, US, who examined the recent forensic findings, is a co-author of this Memorandum. He has drafted a more detailed technical report titled "Cyber-Forensic Investigation of 'Russian Hack' and Missing Intelligence Community Disclaimers," and sent it to the offices of the Special Counsel and the Attorney General. VIPS member William Binney, a former Technical Director at the National Security Agency, and other senior NSA "alumni" in VIPS attest to the professionalism of the independent forensic findings.

5) Timeline of events regarding the DNC emails.

Intel Vets Challenge 'Russia Hack' Evidence

Independent cyber-investigators have now completed the kind of forensic work that the intelligence assessment did not do. Oddly, the "hand-picked" intelligence analysts contented themselves with "assessing" this and "assessing" that. In contrast, the investigators dug deep and came up with verifiable evidence from metadata found in the record of the alleged Russian hack.

They found that the purported "hack" of the DNC by Guccifer 2.0 was not a hack, by Russia or anyone else. Rather it originated with a copy (onto an external storage device – a thumb drive, for example) by an insider. The data was leaked to implicate Russia. We do not know who or what the murky Guccifer 2.0 is. You may wish to ask the FBI.

The Time Sequence

July 5, 2016: In the early evening, Eastern Daylight Time, someone working in the EDT time zone with a computer directly connected to the DNC server or DNC Local Area Network, copied 1,976 MegaBytes of data in 87 seconds onto an external storage device. That speed is much faster than what is physically possible with a hack.

It thus appears that the purported "hack" of the DNC by Guccifer 2.0 (the self-proclaimed WikiLeaks source) was not a hack by Russia or anyone else, but was rather a copy of DNC data onto an external storage device.

June 12, 2016: Assange announces WikiLeaks is about to publish "emails related to Hillary Clinton."

June 14, 2016: DNC contractor CrowdStrike, (with a dubious professional record and multiple conflicts of interest) announces that malware has been found on the DNC server and claims there is evidence it was injected by Russians.

June 15, 2016: "Guccifer 2.0" affirms the DNC statement; claims responsibility for the "hack;" claims to be a WikiLeaks source; and posts a document that the forensics show was synthetically tainted with "Russian fingerprints."

We do not think that the June 12, 14, & 15 timing was pure coincidence. Rather, it suggests the start of a pre-emptive move to associate Russia with anything WikiLeaks might have been about to publish and to "show" that it came from a Russian hack.

6) When asked by Sean Hannity, Wikileaks founder Julian Assange said the DNC emails did not come from Russia or a state party.

7) Assange implied that Seth Rich was the source of the DNC emails.

8) Wikileaks offered a $20,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of Seth Rich's killer.

WikiLeaks offers $20,000 for information on former DNC staffer's murder

"ANNOUNCE: WikiLeaks has decided to issue a US $20k reward for information leading to conviction for the murder of DNC staffer Seth Rich," the website tweeted.

9) Shawn Henry, President of CrowdStrike Services, said when his company was contacted to investigate the DNC breach, he was told the system had been "hacked."

This determination was made prior to his company's investigation of the DNC's computer system.

https://www.dni.gov/files/HPSCI_Transcripts/2020-05-04-Shawn_Henry-MTR_Redacted.pdf

10) Henry said their analysts had "indicators" but no direct evidence that data from the DNC servers was exfiltrated by a Russian actor.

https://www.dni.gov/files/HPSCI_Transcripts/2020-05-04-Shawn_Henry-MTR_Redacted.pdf

MR. HENRY: I do. I have to just think about it. I do know. I mean, it's in our report that I think the committee has.

MR. SCHIFF: And, to the best of your recollection, when would that have been?

MR. HENRY: Counsel just reminded me that, as it relates to the DNC, we have indicators that data was exfiltrated. We did not have concrete evidence that data was exfiltrated from the DNC, but we have indicators that it was exfiltrated.

MR. SCHIFF: And the indicators that it was exfiltrated, when does it indicate that would have taken place?

MR. HENRY: Again, it's in the report. I believe -- I believe it was April of 2016. I'm confused on the date. I think it was April, but it's in the report.

MR. SCHIFF: It provides in the report on 2016, April 22nd, data staged for exfiltration by the Fancy Bear actor.

MR. HENRY: Yes, sir. So that, again, staged for, which, I mean, there's not -- the analogy I used with Mr. Stewart earlier was we don't have video of it happening, but there are indicators that it happened. There are times when we can see data exfiltrated, and we can say conclusively. But in this case, it appears it was set up to be exfiltrated, but we just don't have the evidence that says it actually left.

MR. SCHIFF: Did the technology vendor -- could you tell us who the technology vendor was that you were working with?

MR. HENRY: That the DNC was working with?

MR. SCHIFF: Yes.

MR. HENRY: His -- it's a company called MIS. And the actual

11) When asked about the possibility that the data transfer was done by a local drive transfer instead of over the internet (by a Russian actor), Henry called the idea implausible, but he didn't explain why he thought it was implausible.

that network.

MR. CONAWAY: And you could attribute the total volume through some sort of metric?

MR. HENRY: So we can -- I mean, we saw an identified volume. I don't know that we can say that that's all that was taken, but we certainly can say what we saw, 70 gigabytes of data.

MR. CONAWAY: Okay.

And I apologize for not having the article with me. There is this conspiracy theorist group out there that will argue that you guys are just totally wrong and that it was an insider job, and they walk through this analysis using, quote/unquote, "experts," et cetera, et cetera. And the genesis of what they're arguing is that there's not a databank out there fast enough to download what was believed to be downloaded without it being onto a thumb drive directly off the machine.

Have you seen that line of logic, or have you heard anybody talking about that?

MR. HENRY: I have seen it.

MR. CONAWAY: Okay. Do you find it plausible or implausible? What's going on with that conspiracy theory?

MR. HENRY: I've talked to the technical experts in my organization who say it's not plausible at all, what they're saying, that their argument is not plausible.

MR. CONAWAY: All right. And I'm skeptical of the article, as well, just because of all the other things that are going on that kind of back up what CrowdStrike did. The mechanics of download speeds, all the other things they talked about, which sounds very credible to the uninformed, to someone who's looking at it without any kind of background, does it fall apart there? Where does it fall apart when you talk to your guys?

MR. HENRY: I don't know that I can tell you the specifics about it, other than I've spoken to my team about it, who are true experts in this area, and they say that the argument is just not plausible.

MR. CONAWAY: Okay. He names some of the -- well, he doesn't either. Okay.

So what's your relationship with the Podesta emails?

MR. HENRY: I never -- I don't have a relationship with them, other than --

MR. CONAWAY: So that fishing expedition and the stealing of those was totally outside your realm or your work?

MR. HENRY: Yes.

MR. CONAWAY: Okay.

Did the DNC restrict anything that you shared with the FBI or that the FBI asked for? Did they tell you "no" at any point?

MR. HENRY: No, I have no recollection. Again, I know that there are redacted reports and there was some restriction on the reports. That's the only thing I can recall.

MR. CONAWAY: All right.

You mentioned that you left tools in --

[Discussion off the record]

MR. HENRY: Everything that was requested by the FBI was provided.

MR. CONAWAY: Okay.

Quickly, you said you left tools in place to monitor for further intrusions. Is that a normal part of your service on remediation, that you leave those?

MR. HENRY: Yes, sir.

12) Henry from CrowdStrike thought a local data transfer of DNC files was implausible.

Because he didn't have direct evidence of a data transfer by Russians, he thought perhaps they took screenshots of the emails instead.

Can't make this stuff up. 😞

MR. HENRY: There were files related to opposition research that had been conducted.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: Okay. What about the emails that everyone is so, you know, knowledgeable of? Were there also indicators that they were prepared but not evidence that they actually were exfiltrated?

MR. HENRY: There's not evidence that they were actually exfiltrated. There's circumstantial evidence --

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: Okay.

MR. HENRY: -- but no evidence that they were actually exfiltrated. But let me also state that if somebody was monitoring an email server, they could read all the email.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: Right.

MR. HENRY: And there might not be evidence of it being exfiltrated, but they would have knowledge of what was in the email.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: But they wouldn't be able to copy that email; they could only watch it in real-time.

MR. HENRY: There would be ways to copy it. You could take screenshots. You could copy it.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: All right. So I think that's one of the more interesting things that we've learned from you today, again, that there is no evidence it was actually exfiltrated.

Is it -- it seems unlikely to me that in the real-time that they're watching these emails that they'd be able to collect the hundreds or thousands that they had but with screenshots or whatever.

MR. HENRY: So there is circumstantial evidence that it was taken.

Circumstantial evidence

Screenshot thousands of emails?

13) According to Mr. Wilson (a representative of the DNC), CrowdStrike did not communicate directly with the DNC.

The DNC contracted with Perkins Coie.
 Perkins Coie contracted with CrowdStrike.
 Sussman of Perkins Coie advised the DNC based on recommendations from CrowdStrike.

matter.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: If I can just clarify one thing you said. CrowdStrike was working for Perkins Coie. Is that the contract was actually with the law firm then?

MR. WILSON: Correct. We had a contract between Perkins Coie and CrowdStrike, with a scope of work for the DNC-specific work.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: So does that mean that you never had a contract, Mr. Henry, with the DNC directly then?

MR. HENRY: I mentioned it was with Michael Sussmann from Perkins Coie.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: Good. Thank you.

MR. WILSON: So the one thing I would want to say is I think we are not waiving any of the attorney-client privilege over the work product here today. That being said, we are trying to -- you don't hear me piping up, "don't say this," "don't say that," because we want Shawn to be able to give you the information that was relevant to this investigation so you have it.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: Yes.

MR. WILSON: And we're happy to have him do that. And without -- again, I'm not waiving any privilege, we're happy to have him continue to Wilson (DNC) says they contracted with Perkins Coie who contracted with CrowdStrike.

 The DNC did not communicate directly with CrowdStrike.
 Wilson says his comms were with Sussman from Perkins Coie

14) Except that here, Henry from CrowdStrike said he had frequent communications directly with the DNC.

MR. STEWART OF UTAH: And let me -- I'll narrow my question, if I could, because that's an unfair question, I mean, because -- in regards to your work with the DNC, does that -- did that conclude your work with the DNC?

MR. HENRY: I think -- I think so. I don't want to make an emphatic statement, because over the course of the next couple months, there were leaks of data. We were talking to people at the DNC. They were trying to identify what documents were being leaked. So there were certainly communications. I think we were monitoring their network. I mean, we still had our technology in their network.

So I wouldn't say it ended. But, from a professional services or an incident response perspective, probably, but we still had engagement with them, because leading up to the election, we had concerns that the Russians were going to come back or somebody was going to try to access that environment. So we did provide monitoring throughout that period of time.

Mr. Stewart, 5 minutes.

Henry says he communicated directly with the DNC.

15) Let's go back to this post and decode the rest of it.

19) "By 2013, Obama's PDB was making its way to more than 30 recipients..."

And of course, all that illegally obtained information could easily be leaked to the press.

#Obamagate

The PDB has traditionally been for the president's eyes only.

The very title of this top-secret intelligence report says so: It's the president's book. And indeed, it is tailored to each president's individual needs. CIA officers in 1961 designed what was initially known as the President's Intelligence Checklist specifically for John F. Kennedy's tastes, using punchy words and phrases while avoiding clunky bureaucratic language and annoying classification markings. That checklist evolved into the President's Daily Brief in late 1964, as the agency reformatted and retitled the book of secrets to appeal to Lyndon Johnson's preferences. While the name has stuck, the content and format have continued to evolve. President Obama receives his in digital form and reads it on a tablet.

But while through most of its history the document has been marked "For the President's Eyes Only," the PDB has never gone to the president alone. The most restricted dissemination was in the early 1970s, when the book went only to President Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, who was dual-hatted as national security adviser and secretary of state. In other administrations, the circle of readers has also included the vice president, the secretary of defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, along with additional White House staffers. By 2013, Obama's PDB was making its way to more than 30 recipients, including the president's top strategic communications aide and speechwriter, and deputy secretaries of national security departments.

MYTH NO. 2

Senior intelligence officers have briefed past presidents in person every day.

The commander in chief has received the PDB every working morning for the past 50 years. In-person briefings, though, haven't been as frequent.

The FBI leadership team (7th floor) was assisted in the operation by the CIA which provided 3 spies who were inserted in to the Trump campaign. Australian intelligence assisted with that part of the operation.

Former FBI Chief Counsel James Baker served as a bridge between the FBI leadership team and Perkins Coie (shell company 2) who provided funding for much of the operation.

The FBI leadership team (7th floor) developed an "insurance policy," which was a scheme to keep Trump from being elected and to remove him from office if he won the election. The plan revolved around surveillance of the campaign by obtaining FISA warrants on Carter Page, George Papadopoulos, Paul Manafort and Mike Flynn.

The FBI leadership team claimed Trump was not a target of the investigation, though in fact, he was. The bureau had plausible deniability because they targeted people around him, instead of targeting Trump directly.

FBI leadership (McCabe) discussed the possibility of having Rod Rosenstein wear a wire to record Trump. Their hope was that he would say something irrational and they use that to remove him from office under the 25th amendment. That plan failed.

FBI & DOJ pushed Jeff Sessions to recuse himself from the Russia investigation, which left Rod Rosenstein in charge.

28) FBI decided to regain control of the White House by appointing a Special Counsel to investigate Donald Trump.

Rosenstein's scope memo targeted 4 Trump associates.

DOJ & FBI employees were forced to comply.

Rosenstein's trip on AF 1 had a strategic purpose.

January 5: Yates, Comey, CIA Director John Brennan, and Director of National Intelligence James Clapper briefed Obama on Russia-related matters in the Oval Office. Biden and Rice also attended. After the Obama briefing, the intelligence chiefs who would be leaving at the end of the term were dismissed and Yates and Comey, who would continue in the Trump administration, were asked to stay. Not only did Obama give his guidance about how to perpetuate the Russia collusion theory investigations, he also talked about Flynn's conversations with Russian Ambassador Sergey Kislyak, according to both Comey and Yates. Interestingly, Clapper, Comey, and Yates all said that they did not brief Obama about these phone calls. Clapper testified he did not brief Obama on the calls, Yates learned about the calls from Obama himself during that meeting, and Comey also testified he didn't brief Obama about the calls, even though the intelligence was an FBI product. Rice, who publicly lied but later admitted under oath to her widespread use of unmasked intelligence at the end of the Obama administration, likely briefed Obama on the calls and would have had access to the intelligence. Comey mentions the Logan Act at this meeting.

It was this meeting that Rice memorialized in a bizarre inauguration-day email to herself that claimed Obama told the gathered to do everything "by the book." But Rice also noted in her email that the key point of discussion in that meeting was whether and how to withhold national security information, likely including details of the investigation into Trump himself, from the incoming Trump national security team.

38) As the incoming National Security Adviser, General Flynn would be privy to the details of how the Obama administration spied on the Trump campaign. Removing Flynn was their top priority.

#Obamagate

39) The FBI kept their investigation of Flynn (Crossfire Razor) open despite having no reason to do so.

Per Bill Priestap, their goal was either to set up a trap to get Flynn to lie or get him fired.

January 4: Following the closure of a pretextually dubious and politically motivated FBI investigation of Flynn at the beginning of January, the leadership of the FBI scrambled to reopen a case against Flynn, the man who in his role as National Security Advisor would have to review their Russia collusion investigation. FBI officials openly discussed their concern about briefing the veteran intelligence official on what they had done to the Trump campaign and transition team and what they were planning to do to the incoming Trump administration. Flynn had to be dealt with. The FBI's top counterintelligence official would later memorialize discussions about the FBI's attempts to "get [Flynn] fired." No reopening was needed, they determined, when they discovered they had failed to close the previous investigation. They found this mistake "amazing" and "serendipitously good" and said "our utter incompetence actually helps us." Even more noteworthy were texts from FBI's #2 counterintelligence official Peter Strzok to FBI lawyer Lisa Page noting that the "7th floor," a reference to Comey and his deputy director Andrew McCabe, was running the show.

40) Information (and disinformation) was illegally leaked to the press to make Flynn think he was not under investigation, when in fact, he was.

January 23: Another important criminal leak was given to Ellen Nakashima and Greg Miller of the Washington Post, also based on criminal leaks. Their article, headlined "FBI reviewed Flynn's calls with Russian ambassador but found nothing illicit," was intended to make Flynn feel safe and put him at ease about the FBI stance on those calls the day before they planned to ambush him in an interview. The article was used to publicize false information when it said, "Although Flynn's contacts with Russian Ambassador Sergey Kislyak were listened to, Flynn himself is not the active target of an investigation, U.S. officials said." In fact, emails prior to this date confirm Flynn was their prime target. This article was later cited by McCabe as the reason why they were justified in concealing from Flynn the real purpose of their interview. Flynn later asked McCabe if he knew how all the information about his phone calls had been made public and whether it had been leaked. Any potential response from McCabe to Flynn has been redacted from his own notes about the conversation.

41) A second illegal leak of information was needed before Flynn would be removed from his position as National Security Adviser.

February 9: The strategy to get Flynn fired didn't immediately work so another leak was deployed to Greg Miller, Adam Entous and Ellen Nakashima of the Washington Post. That article, headline "National security adviser Flynn discussed sanctions with Russian ambassador, despite denials, officials say," was sourced to people who happened to share senior FBI leadership's views on the Logan Act. This article was also based on criminal leaks of top secret information of phone call intercepts and laid out the FBI's case for why Flynn's contacts with a foreign adversary were a problem. The fact that such phone calls are routine, not to mention Flynn's case that improved relations with Russia in a world where China, North Korea, and Iran were posing increasing threats, never made it into these articles for context.

February 13: The operation finally succeeded in getting Flynn fired and rendering him unable to review the operations against the Trump campaign, Trump transition team, and Trump administration.

42) With Flynn out of the way, the #Obamagate plotters went to work on neutralizing Jeff Sessions.

Jim Comey kept information about the Russia investigation from Sessions. He and others leaked information to smear Sessions as a Russian sympathizer and he quickly recused himself

March 1: Flynn was the first obstacle who had to be overcome. Attorney General Jeff Sessions was the next. The Trump loyalist with a strong Department of Justice background would also need to be briefed on the anti-Trump efforts unless he could be sidelined. Comey admitted that early in Sessions' tenure, he deliberately hid Russia-related information from Sessions because, "it made little sense to report it to Attorney General Sessions, who we expected would likely recuse himself from involvement in Russia-related investigations." To secure that recusal, yet another leak was deployed to the Washington Post's Adam Entous, Ellen Nakashima and Greg Miller. The leak was intended to tar Sessions as a secret Russian agent and was dramatically spun as "Sessions Spoke Twice To Russian Envoy: Revelation contradicts his testimony at confirmation hearing." One meeting was in passing and the other was in his function as a United States Senator, but the hysteria was such that the Post authors could get away with suggesting Sessions was too compromised to oversee the Department of Justice's counterintelligence operations involving Russia. It is perhaps worth noting that the Special Counsel idea was pushed in this article.

March 2: Sessions recused himself from oversight of the FBI's anti-Trump operation, providing no meaningful oversight to an operation that would be spun into a Special Counsel by mid-May. With the removal of Trump's National Security Advisor and his Attorney General, there was no longer any chance of Trump loyalists discovering what Obama holdovers at the FBI were actually doing to get Trump thrown out of office. After Trump fired Comey for managerial incompetence on May 9, deceptively edited and misleading leaks to the New York Times ordered by Comey himself were used to gin up a Special Counsel run exclusively by left-wing anti-Trump partisans who continued the operation without any meaningful oversight for another two years.

43) With Sessions out of the way, Rod Rosenstein appointed Robert Mueller as Special Counsel.

Mueller would keep Trump under continual public suspicion of a crime and give legitimacy to media's false narrative of Russian collusion.

Then, my sources start whispering to me that there were all these mysterious communications between Michael Flynn, who was then the National Security Advisor designate for Trump and the Russian ambassador, Kislyak.

Initially, I didn't know what to make of it. There were divisions within the newsroom. At that point, I'm at the Washington Post. There are divisions about this Why is it news that Michael Flynn is talking to the Russian ambassador? He should be talking to the Russian ambassador. He should be talking to him about saving the children of Aleppo, for example. There's no reason why he shouldn't be having that conversation. I was arguing internally that we need something more than just the fact that there was a conversation but I'm one of many reporters.

Why did the story go to Ignatius?

As a columnist, he was about to throw out the Flynn/Kislyak call and ask "What was it about?"

I'm not certain the call was ever independently leaked to Ignatius.

What happened was a columnist, David Ignatius wrote a story around the 12th of January, which revealed that Kislyak had been having these conversations with Flynn but it wasn't clear to Ignatius what the conversations were about. This is something a columnist can do, unlike me as a news reporter, he was able to just throw this piece of red meat out there and just say, "There was this conversation. What was it about?" I'm defending our decision not to run with this story earlier about just this flurry of questionable communications because I didn't think it was enough.

Carl Bernstein

Co-Winner of the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for Public Service

After leaving The Washington Post in 1977, Carl Bernstein spent six months looking at the relationship of the CIA and the press during the Cold War years. His 25,000-word cover story, published in Rolling Stone on October 20, 1977, is reprinted below.

THE CIA AND THE MEDIA

How America's Most Powerful News Media Worked Hand In Glove with the Central Intelligence Agency and Why the Church Committee Covered It Up

BY CARL BERNSTEIN

In 1953, Joseph Alsop, then one of America's leading syndicated columnists, went to the Philippines to cover an election. He did not go because he was asked to do so by his syndicate. He did not go because he was asked to do so by the newspapers that printed his column. He went at the request of the CIA.

Alsop is one of more than 400 American journalists who in the past twenty-five years have secretly carried out assignments for the Central Intelligence Agency, according to documents on file at CIA headquarters. Some of these journalists' relationships with the Agency were tacit; some were explicit. There was cooperation, accommodation and overlap. Journalists provided a full range of clandestine services—from simple intelligence gathering to serving as go-betweens with spies in Communist countries. Reporters shared their notebooks with the CIA. Editors shared their staffs. Some of the journalists were Pulitzer Prize winners, distinguished reporters who considered themselves ambassadors without portfolio for their country. Most were less exalted: foreign correspondents who found that their association with the Agency helped their work; stringers and freelancers who were as interested in the derring-do of the spy business as in filling articles; and, the smallest category, full-time CIA employees masquerading as journalists abroad. In many instances, CIA documents show, journalists were engaged to perform tasks for the CIA with the consent of the managements of America's leading news organizations.

The history of the CIA's involvement with the American press continues to be shrouded by an official policy of obfuscation and deception for the following principal reasons:

- The use of journalists has been among the most productive means of intelligence-gathering employed by the CIA. Although the Agency has cut back sharply on the use of reporters since 1973 primarily as a result of pressure from the media), some journalist-operatives are still posted abroad.

WORKING PRESS — CIA STYLE

To understand the role of most journalist-operatives, it is necessary to dismiss some myths about undercover work for American intelligence services. Few American agents are "spies". In the popularly accepted sense of the term, "spying" — the acquisition of secrets from a foreign government — is almost

59) In its perfect world, the CIA would have one of its own as President. But for most of its existence, the agency has settled for controlling the White House by leveraging information against the Chief Executive.

<https://www.cia.gov/news-information/featured-story-archive/2018-featured-story-archive/george-h-w-bush2014the-11th-director-of-central-intelligence.html>

George H.W. Bush—the 11th Director of Central Intelligence

Thirteen years before becoming the President of the United States, George H.W. Bush served as the 11th Director of Central Intelligence (DCI). Many believed leading the CIA would mark an end to his political career. Instead, Bush became the only US president to have previously held the position of DCI, which gave him a unique perspective on both providing and receiving intelligence.

Bush joined the Agency at a tumultuous time when morale was at an all-time low. He believed strongly in the mission of the Agency, and he believed in the CIA officers serving their nation. As DCI he immediately established himself as a leader who restored the morale and reputation of the CIA.

Time of Troubles

The 1970s came to be known as the "time of troubles" for the CIA. Six different DCIs served within a ten-year timeframe. The Agency was shrouded in controversy from the leak of the "Family Jewels," an internal report detailing controversial activities undertaken by the Agency dating back to President Dwight Eisenhower's administration.

Congressional committees led by Representative Otis Pike and Senator Frank Church were formed in early 1975 to determine "the extent, if any, to which illegal, improper, or unethical activities were engaged in by any agency of the Federal Government." The leak of the Family Jewels coupled with the investigations tainted the public image of the CIA and plummeted the morale of Agency officers.

The Church Committee's investigative work ultimately led to reform efforts throughout the intelligence community. However, a dark cloud now hung over the CIA. The Ford Administration concluded that the Agency needed a new sense of purpose and a new director who could improve relations with Congress.

ADVISORY MEMORANDUM ON THE INSIDER THREAT TO U. S. GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS (IS)

TITLE	SECTION
INTRODUCTION.....	I
THREAT TO U.S. GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS FROM INSIDERS.....	II
VULNERABILITIES.....	III
PERSEPECTIVE FROM NO-NOTICE EXERCISES.....	IV
COUNTERMEASURES TO THE INSIDER THREAT.....	V

I. INTRODUCTION

The February 28, 1994 Joint Security Commission report to the Secretary of Defense and the Director of Central Intelligence entitled "Redefining Security" recognized the insider threat problem. It found that:

"The great majority of past compromises have involved insider, cleared persons with authorized access who could circumvent physical security barrier, not outsiders breaking into secure areas."

For this reason, the Commission highlighted two areas for particular attention. First, personnel security lies at the very heart of our security system, and the trustworthiness of those who deal with sensitive and classified information must be ensured. Second, Information Systems (IS) security requires increased attention. U. S. Government organizations are increasingly dependent on IS in performing their complex missions. The evolution of IS technology is, however, much faster than that of IS security technology. Overcoming this problem will require careful threat assessments, investment strategies, funding, and management attention if we are to protect the integrity, availability, and confidentiality of our information assets. These themes, emphasized by the Commission, continue to be vital in solving the insider problem and are reflected in this advisory.

II. THREAT TO U.S. GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS FROM INSIDERS

While government IS face a variety of threats from a variety of sources, the greatest potential threat comes from insiders with legitimate access to those systems. Data is sketchy on the extent of insider abuse of IS in general, and also of insider abuse of government systems. It is likely that most government insider abuse incidents are not reported beyond the parent organization and are dealt with internally; there is no central repository of government insider computer incident investigations.¹

¹ For perspectives on the insider threat to the private sector see: "The Insider Threat to Information Systems: A Framework

The sources told Fox News that interim U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia Timothy Shea is also assisting with components of the investigation. Shea (Barr's trusted friend) is assisting with the investigation

"They farmed the investigation out because it is too much for Durham and he didn't want to be distracted," one of the sources told Fox News.

"He's going full throttle, and they're looking at everything," the source told Fox News.

The Justice Department declined to comment on Jensen and Shea's involvement.

Breadcrumbs were being dropped in the days preceding the decision that his case could be reconsidered. Documents unsealed the prior week by the Justice Department revealed agents discussed their motivations for interviewing him in the Russia probe – questioning whether they wanted to "get him to lie" so he'd be fired or prosecuted, or get him to admit wrongdoing. Flynn allies howled over the revelations, arguing that he essentially had been set up in a perjury trap. In that interview, Flynn did not admit wrongdoing and instead was accused of lying about his contacts with the then-Russian ambassador – to which he pleaded guilty.

159) Q refers to his hints as "crumbs."

The breadcrumb trail reads "Home > Browse the Constitution Annotated > Article I > Section 6 > Clause 1 > ArtI.S6.C1.1.2 Privilege From Arrest". Below the breadcrumb, there are two navigation links: "ArtI.S6.C1.1.1 Compensation for Members: Overview" and "ArtI.S6.C1.1.3 Speech and Debate Privilege". The main heading is "ArtI.S6.C1.1.2 Privilege From Arrest". The content area features a quote from Article I, Section 6, Clause 1: "The Senators and Representatives shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all Cases, except Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace, be privileged from Arrest during their Attendance at the Session of their respective Houses and in going to and returning from the same; and for any Speech or Debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other Place." Below the quote, a paragraph explains that this clause is practically obsolete, applying only to arrests in civil suits, and does not apply to service of process in either civil or criminal cases. A sidebar on the right lists "US Constitution" and "Topics" including "Senate" and "House of Representatives".

The Armor of God

Finally, be strong in the Lord and in his mighty power. Put on the full armor of God, so that you can take your stand against the devil's schemes. For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms. Therefore put on the full armor of God, so that when the day of evil comes, you may be able to stand your ground, and after you have done everything, to stand. Stand firm then, with the belt of truth buckled around your waist, with the breastplate of righteousness in place, and with your feet fitted with the readiness that comes from the gospel of peace. In addition to all this, take up the shield of faith, with which you can extinguish all the flaming arrows of the evil one. Take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

And pray in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests. With this in mind, be alert and always keep on praying for all the Lord's people.

FBI leadership (7th floor) and AG Loretta Lynch coordinated a meeting on the Phoenix tarmac where Bill Clinton promised Loretta Lynch a position on the Supreme Court (SC) in exchange for a declination of prosecution for Hillary Clinton.

197) LA County will extend its lockdown for (at least) 3 more months.

198) Corrupt politicians see your money as their money.

California spent itself into oblivion and now they want a federal bailout (under the cover of Covid-19 relief).

California's massive debt should caution against big spending
 As convenient as it might be for politicians and special interest groups to borrow and spend, there comes a time when the bills come due.

199) Those who are asleep don't question the opinions of "experts" or wonder where their tax money goes. Politicians use them as pawns.

Will the DOJ will step in and end the abuse of civil rights?

Of the more than $3 trillion package, about $1 trillion would go to state, local and tribal governments, according to three sources briefed on the proposal.

"Now she wants to write a $3 trillion bill, with no one able to see, no accountability, and no input," McCarthy told Fox News on Monday. "I mean, this is not how democracy works. This is a real concern to all of us this won't ever become law, but it'll be the wishlist of the liberals, to try to change election law, fund Planned Parenthood, and make sure sanctuary cities get the chunk of the money."
