On Patriot Day, we honor the memories of the nearly 3,000 precious lives we lost on September 11, 2001, and of every hero who has given their life since that day to protect our safety and our freedom. We come together, today, to recall this timeless truth: When America is united, no force on Earth can break us apart. Our values endure; our people thrive; our Nation prevails; and the memory of our loved ones never fades.

Although that fateful Tuesday 17 years ago began like any other, it erupted into horror and anguish when radical Islamist terrorists carried out an unprecedented attack on our homeland. In New York, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, the enemies of liberty took aim on America, but their evil acts could not crush our spirit, ~~and we will never allow our commitment to freedom to be crushed.~~

September 11, 2018

The Honorable Rod Rosenstein
Deputy Attorney General
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Reservation:

As you may know, we recently received a new production of documents from the Department providing greater insight into FBI and DOJ activity during the 2016 election and the early stages of the Trump administration. Our review of these new documents raises grave concerns regarding an apparent systemic culture of media leaking by high-ranking officials at FBI and DOJ related to ongoing investigations.

Review of these new documents suggests a coordinated effort on the part of the FBI and DOJ to release information in the public domain potentially harmful to President Donald Trump's administration. For example, the following text exchange should lead a reasonable person to question whether there was a sincere desire to investigate wrongdoing or to place derogatory information in the media to justify a continued probe.

April 10, 2011: Peter Struck contacts Lisa Page to discuss a "media leak strategy." Specifically, he text says: I had literally just gone to find this phone to tell you I want to talk to you about media leak strategy with DOJ before you go.

April 12, 2007: Peter Struck warns Page two articles are coming out, one which is "worse" than the other about Leah's "namequake" [Carter Page].

While these text messages alone are troubling enough, events surrounding these interactions call the motives of the investigation team into question.

For example, while Strok and Page talked about media leaks on April 11, 2017—during the same timeframe as FBI and DOJ officials were having conversations with reporters—the Washington Post broke a story on the Carter Page FISA application, setting off a flurry of articles suggesting connections between President Trump and Russia.¹⁷ Other documents indicate DOJ officials, specifically Andrew Weissman, participated in unauthorized conversations with the media during this same time period. Evidence suggests senior officials at the FBI and DOJ communicated with other news outlets beyond the Washington Post, as well.

During our interviews with Peter Strick and Lisa Page, FBI attorneys consistently suggested witnesses could not answer questions due to the US Attorney's Manual's policy for ongoing investigations. However, documents strongly suggest that these same witnesses discussed the ongoing investigations multiple times with individuals outside of the investigative team on a regular basis.

Our task force continues to receive troubling evidence that the practice of coordinated media interactions continues to exist within the DOJ/FBI. While his activity may be authorized and not part of the inappropriate behavior highlighted above, it fails to advance the private march to justice and as such, warrants your attention to end this practice.

In light of the new information, our task force is requesting to review test messages, results, and written communication from Individuals Stu Evans, Mike Kortan, and Joe Penkita between 2010 and 2013. It will be clear, we are not suggesting wrongdoing on the part of Evans, Kortan, and Penkita and, in fact, previously reviewed documents suggest that some of these individuals may share the common "same concerns. However, these additional documents, with an emphasis on communication between the aforementioned individuals and Peter Strick, Andrew McCabe, Lisa Page, Bruce Orr, and Andrew Weissmann, would provide critical insight into the backdrop of the Russia investigation.

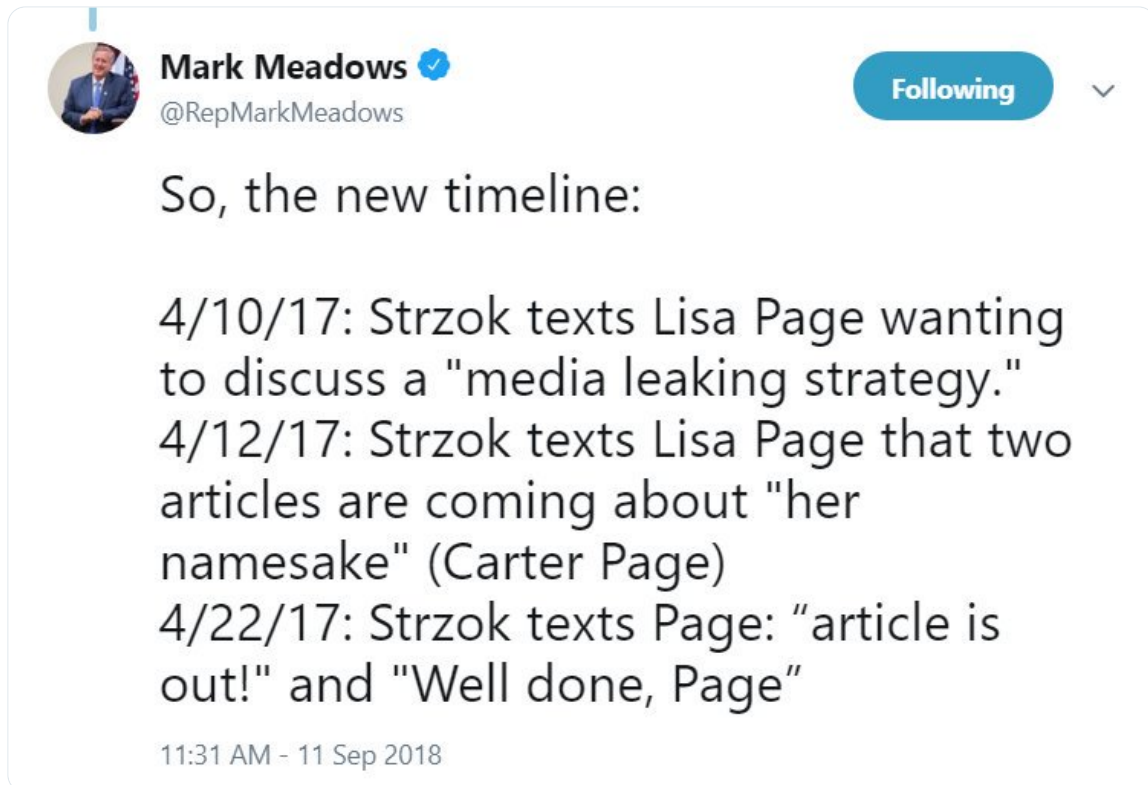

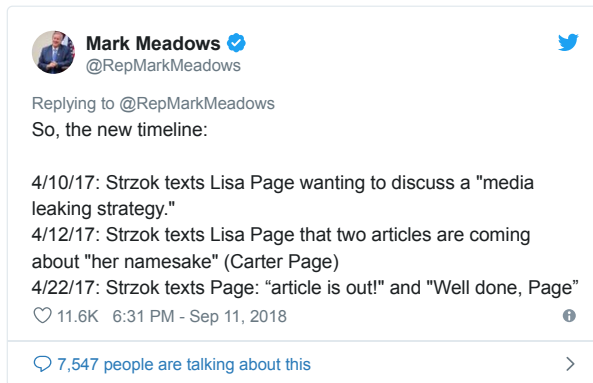

Your attention to this matter is greatly appreciated.

A Trail of 'Bread Crumbs,' Leading Conspiracy Theorists Into the Wilderness

<https://pbs.twimg.com/media/Dm3pMPSWwAEP6tZ.jpg>

22) My feedback for Mattathias (@Schwartzesque), the new #Qanon student at the New York Times. #Qanon

Q's bread crumbs are spiced with accessible citations from fairy tales and pop culture: "Alice in Wonderland," Snow White, "The Godfather." And yet Q has, thus far, refrained from mentioning the story that gave us the bread-crumbs analogy in the first place — the story of Hansel and Gretel, as set down by the Brothers Grimm. It is an unusually brutal story, containing accounts of child abandonment, cannibalism and the unexplained death of the protagonists' mother. It takes place during a famine, and its core theme is hunger. Lack of food causes Hansel and Gretel's parents to abandon them, giving each a piece of bread before leading them deep into the woods.

The trail of bread crumbs left by Hansel, though, is not intended as a series of clues for someone else. It is more like Theseus' ball of thread, allowing the children to find their way back home. And this plan does not work: The crumbs are eaten by birds, and the children wander deeper into the unknown, to the witch's house. By the time they arrive, they are starving.

<https://pbs.twimg.com/media/Dm3p4FOXoAMAVbf.jpg>

Mattathias:

An improvement over your previous work. It's apparent you're now reading some of Q's posts (at least enough to learn some of Q's signatures.)

You still don't seem to grasp the thrust of Q's messages. Try focusing less on the lives of Q researchers and pay more attention to what Q is actually saying. (He does have a message, you know.)

You might pretend you know nothing about Q and let the messages speak for themselves.
