My Theme: Covid 19 - How to Steal an Election

- 2) For the benefit of those who are new to these discussions, I'll provide a brief history of efforts intended to prevent Donald Trump from being elected President and then, to remove him from office.
- 3) in 2016, the FBI launched Operation Crossfire Hurricane in what appears to be a politically motivated attempt to prevent Donald Trump from being elected President. Attorney General Barr is currently investigating the origins of that operation.

William Barr is rightly looking into 'Crossfire Hurricane'

Attorney General William Barr spent two days on Capitol Hill this week, ostensibly to testify on his department's fiscal 2020 budget request.

<https://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2019/apr/10/william-barr-is-rightly-looking-into...>

4) When Operation Crossfire Hurricane failed, the Mueller investigation was launched in an attempt to remove POTUS from office.

That effort also failed when on March 22nd, 2019, the Mueller investigation ended without POTUS being charged with a crime.

5) Hoping to find some evidence of wrongdoing, Trump's enemies had Mueller testify before Congress on July 24th, 2019.

Mueller's testimony was an even bigger disaster than his written report.

Live coverage: Mueller testifies before Congress

Former special counsel Robert Mueller will testify Wednesday in what is expected to be one of the more dramatic days on Capitol Hill in recent memory.

6) The VERY NEXT DAY, POTUS had his now-infamous phone call with Ukrainian President Zelensky.

That phone call was used as a pretext to impeach POTUS.

~~(S//NF)~~ The President: Congratulations on a great victory. We all watched from the United States and you did a terrific job. The way you came from behind, somebody who wasn't given much of a chance, and you ended up winning easily. It's a fantastic achievement. Congratulations.

~~(S//NF)~~ President Zelenskyy: You are absolutely right Mr. President. We did win big and we worked hard for this. We worked a lot but I would like to confess to you that I had an opportunity to learn from you. We used quite a few of your skills and knowledge and were able to use it as an example for our elections and yes it is true that these were unique elections. We were in a unique situation that we were able to government, the American people, and the world prepared for the oncoming danger of infection.

12) The coronavirus was a growing problem in China during the entire month of December. Though China's government tried to conceal the facts, the spread of Covid-19 was not a secret.

Some point in late 2019: The coronavirus jumps from some animal species to a human being. The best guess at this point is that it happened at a Chinese “wet market.”

December 6: According to a study in The Lancet, the symptom onset date of the first patient identified was “Dec 1, 2019 . . . 5 days after illness onset, his wife, a 53-year-old woman who had no known history of exposure to the market, also presented with pneumonia and was hospitalized in the isolation ward.” In other words, as early as the second week of December, Wuhan doctors were finding cases that indicated the virus was spreading from one human to another.

December 21: Wuhan doctors begin to notice a “cluster of pneumonia cases with an unknown cause.”

December 25: Chinese medical staff in two hospitals in Wuhan are suspected of contracting viral pneumonia and are quarantined. This is additional strong evidence of human-to-human transmission.

Sometime in “Late December”: Wuhan hospitals notice “an exponential increase” in the number of cases that cannot be linked back to the Huanan Seafood Wholesale Market, according to the New England Journal of Medicine.

December 30: Dr. Li Wenliang sent a message to a group of other doctors warning them about a possible outbreak of an illness that resembled severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), urging them to take protective measures against infection.

December 31: The Wuhan Municipal Health Commission declares, “The investigation so far has not found any obvious human-to-human transmission and no medical staff infection.” This is the 13) Consider that a viral epidemic in China was building steam at the same time Congress was impeaching the President.

Is it possible that the impeachment in December and January was partly intended to keep Trump from paying attention to Covid-19?

14) That is the accusation that members of the press have leveled against POTUS this week.

What if the intent was to keep everyone's attention on impeachment (Including POTUS) while Covid-19 was spreading around the world?

15) As late a January 14th, the City of Wuhan denied the existence of any cases.

The World Health Organization echoed the position of the Chinese Government, saying there was no evidence of human-to-human transmission of Covid-19 in Wuhan.

January 14: Wuhan city health authorities release another statement declaring, "Among the close contacts, no related cases were found." Wuhan doctors have known this was false since early December, from the first victim and his wife, who did not visit the market.

The World Health Organization echoes China's assessment: "Preliminary investigations conducted by the Chinese authorities have found no clear evidence of human-to-human transmission of the novel coronavirus (2019-nCoV) identified in Wuhan, China."

This is five or six weeks after the first evidence of human-to-human transmission in Wuhan.

January 15: Japan reported its first case of coronavirus. Japan's Health Ministry said the patient had not visited any seafood markets in China, adding that "it is possible that the patient had close contact with an unknown patient with lung inflammation while in China."

The Wuhan Municipal Health Commission begins to change its statements, now declaring, "Existing survey results show that clear human-to-human evidence has not been found, and the possibility of limited human-to-human transmission cannot be ruled out, but the risk of continued human-to-human transmission is low." Recall Wuhan hospitals concluded human-to-human transmission was occurring three weeks earlier. A statement the next day backtracks on the possibility of human transmission, saying only, "Among the close contacts, no related cases were found."

January 17: The CDC and the Department of Homeland Security's Customs and Border Protection announce that travelers from Wuhan to the United States will undergo entry screening for symptoms associated with 2019-nCoV at three U.S. airports that receive most of the travelers from Wuhan, China: San Francisco, New York (JFK), and Los Angeles airports.

16) The next day, January 15th, the patient who would become the first confirmed U.S. case left Wuhan and arrived in the U.S. carrying the virus.

Articles of impeachment delivered to Senate, triggering historic trial of President Trump

Speaker Nancy Pelosi said the House was holding the president "accountable."

19) The articles of impeachment were, apparently, held up in the House (H) long enough to allow the first carrier from China to enter the U.S. Then the articles were delivered to the Senate

20) The public was told that the delay in delivering the articles of impeachment was necessary to allow time to negotiate about the impeachment process and witnesses, but that was a cover story.

21) Everyone knew the President would be acquitted.
The impeachment wasn't about removing Trump from office.
It gave his enemies a venue with the press where they could hurl false accusations at him, and it distracted everyone from the impending pandemic.

22) The pandemic ended the President's rallies.
It ended stock market gains, economic gains, and unemployment gains, and it delayed China-trade negotiations.

(China would benefit greatly if it negotiated with Joe Biden instead of Trump.)

23) The pandemic ended the Democrat debates, locking in Joe Biden as the nominee. Biden has no public appearances scheduled and the structure of the Presidential debates may be changed. The pandemic ended media coverage of the Hunter Biden-Ukraine-China scandal.

24) Since Bernie Sanders dropped out of the Presidential race, Dems need to recruit his base. Nancy Pelosi plans to include parts of the "Green New Deal" in a coronavirus relief bill to appease them.

POTUS knows her plan and will not sign such a bill.

Harmeet Dhillon: Coronavirus and elections – Dems doing this to gain ...

Democrats want to leverage this crisis to massively expand the power of Washington at the expense of the states and individual freedoms.

<https://www.foxnews.com/opinion/coronavirus-elections-wisconsin-democrats-harmeet...>

Democrats have been trying to change the rules for elections for years through the courts. Consider what they are doing this week in Wisconsin. Wisconsin had an election scheduled for Tuesday for a variety of important races. The governor delayed it Monday morning, but that evening the Wisconsin Supreme Court determined he had exceeded his authority under state law. So now the election is going forward as scheduled, for thousands of races.

Democrats, led by Democratic National Committee lawyer Marc Elias, had already sued to change some of the rules governing the election in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Normally Wisconsin requires absentee ballots to be received by Election Day to be counted. This is a common-sense rule in many states. It allows ballots to be counted quickly, gives finality to the election, and prevents shenanigans with ballot harvesting and attempts to change the result after Election Day.

The Democrats asked the district court to allow absentee ballots postmarked by Election Day to be counted even if received after, due to delays in processing a large number of absentee ballot requests and speculative delays in the mail. Instead of just granting the requested relief, the court went even further. Its order allowed absentee ballots received by next Monday, April 13, to be counted, regardless of when postmarked.

That meant that people could vote almost a week after Election Day.

While the Democrats did not ask for that rule change (probably because it would have been a ridiculous request), when the court granted it, they defended it on appeal and claimed that it was really what they wanted all along.

54) Did you know that Al Franken was elected in a recount in Minnesota when election laws were changed after the election?

Harmeet Dhillon: Coronavirus and elections – Dems doing this to gain ...

Democrats want to leverage this crisis to massively expand the power of Washington at the expense of the states and individual freedoms.
<https://www.foxnews.com/opinion/coronavirus-elections-wisconsin-democrats-harmeeet...>

After an emergency appeal, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the court's ruling, upholding the important principle that people cannot vote after Election Day and requiring ballots to be postmarked by Election Day.

This is a classic move from the Democrats' anti-election integrity playbook. Back in 2008, Elias convinced the Minnesota secretary of state to change the rules after the election, resulting in the post-recount victory of Al Franken over Norm Coleman for the Minnesota Senate seat. Franken's victory gave Democrats the 60th vote in the Senate needed for the supermajority that allowed ObamaCare to pass.

James Pickerstein, a former chief assistant U.S. attorney who hired Durham in the Connecticut office in the 1980s Pickerstein said Durham relied on a "good versus evil" vision of the world while overseeing the probe of former governor John G. Rowland.

59) U.S. Attorney John Durham is widely respected as being fair and objective.

He is reported to have relied on a "good versus evil" vision of the world while leading the investigation of former Connecticut Governor John Rowland.

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/americas/8219763.stm>

'Formidable'

US media reports say he is a registered Republican, though he is also described as nonpartisan. They also describe him as a devout Catholic who is driven by a strong sense of morality.

Friends and colleagues paint a picture of a formidable, dogged investigator, respected for his integrity.

"He's not afraid to bring a tough case and he's not afraid to close a case that people want to bring to trial if the evidence doesn't support it," Kevin O'Connor, the former Connecticut attorney general, told the New Republic magazine recently.

"I've never met a person who cares less about what people say about him."

H James Pickerstein, a former chief assistant US attorney who hired Mr Durham in the 1980s, told the Washington Post last year that the prosecutor relied on a "good versus evil" vision of the world while leading the investigation of Mr Rowland.

"John is a dedicated prosecutor who sees things in absolute terms," he said.

In a profile from 2001, a defence lawyer told the Hartford Courant newspaper: "You underestimate Durham at your own peril."

Mr Durham's job for now is to conduct a preliminary probe, before recommending to Mr Holder whether to proceed with a full investigation.

It is an unusually sensitive, high-profile case. But if Mr Durham's track record is anything to go by, he is not one to shrink before the task.

60) The second article is long but worth reading. I'll post a few passages from it.

John Durham won't bring charges unless he has evidence of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt that would withstand the challenge of an appeal.

The lack of criticism for Durham's decision in the CIA cases is a bit surprising, considering how routinely the agency was denounced by lawmakers, commentators, and activists, particularly at that time. The Department of Justice never elaborated on why Durham didn't recommend charges in the destruction of the tapes, but one complication was that the burning of the 92 tapes on November 9, 2005, was authorized in a cable sent by Jose Rodriguez Jr., head of the agency's directorate of operations. Another clue came in a Washington Post article, again quoting unidentified sources saying, "authorities found it difficult to pinpoint the motivation for destroying the tapes, and that it was difficult to prove criminal intent."

In his speech at University of St. Joseph, Durham did not discuss his investigation of the tapes, but he did discuss the prosecutor's calculus of when charges are warranted, which likely applied in this decision. "You are only authorized to bring a prosecution if you believe, based upon the evidence that you have, that you are likely to be able to prove a case not to the probable cause standard, which is all that is required to arrest somebody, but if you believe you can prosecute the case and prove that case beyond a reasonable doubt, and beyond that, that you would be able to sustain that conviction on appeal," Durham said. "And if you can't say, in all honesty, that you would be able to do that, then prosecution is not warranted. When on the nightly news, you're watching what Bob Mueller is doing, and so forth, however that investigation turns out, whatever Mr. Mueller and his colleague conclude, if it's not satisfactory to the public, it may very well be because Bob Mueller is an honorable man who applies those principles of law as he's been taught and as he's taught to others."

"Durham was not just saying, 'Do I have enough here that I could actually get a prosecution?'," Deitz said. "But 'Do I have enough here to justify — legally, morally, societally — this person's conviction?' That's another reason why I admire him."

61) That is different from how some U.S. Attorneys operate.

Many will bring charges, particularly against wealthy clients, anticipating the case never going trial. They expect defendants to agree to pay fines rather than going to court. (This practice is opposed by AG Barr.)

62) A lot of information is provided in the article about Durham's prosecution of organized crime syndicates.

David X. Sullivan, a longtime federal prosecutor who's now running for Congress, joined the U.S. attorney's office in New Haven in 1989 and worked alongside Durham for years.

"John is a consummate professional — he never discusses the particulars of a case with anyone who doesn't need to know about it," Sullivan said. "John doesn't need to raise his voice. He commands a lot of respect. When he spoke, people listened. When John did raise his voice, I'll just say you felt his words. But he is just one of those people who, if you ran into him in elevator and had a conversation in passing, you would never know the authority he had or the weight on his shoulders. He's strong but quiet."

By 1991, Durham was leading the prosecution of the New England Family of La Cosa Nostra. One of the most notorious gangsters of the era, William "The Wild Guy" Grasso, had been murdered, shot in the back of the neck and his body dumped in a patch of poison ivy by the side of the Connecticut River in Wethersfield. Around the same time, Grasso's right-hand man, "Cadillac Frank" Salemme, had been shot outside an International House of Pancakes but survived. The FBI and Durham rolled in, convicting seven high-profile mobsters, including boss Nicholas Bianco for 11 years and 5 months in prison for racketeering. The Hartford Courant called Durham "an avenging angel" who had put one third of Connecticut's mafia in jail and never lost a case. In a six-year period, Durham racked up 119 organized-crime convictions.

Durham's foes in the courtroom weren't just the mafia. He won a conviction of William Dodge, leader of the Ku Klux Klan in southern New England, on charges of illegal possession of firearms, silencers, and explosives. During the trial of one of Dodge's fellow Klansmen, Scott E. Palmer, Durham had a dramatic confrontation with a Roman Catholic priest, the Reverend Mark R. Jette, who had testified that Palmer had reformed his hateful ways. "He is confident Scott Palmer has seen the error of his ways?" Durham asked, according to press accounts. He then presented two drawings Palmer had made in prison. The first was a skull and crossbones with the words, "White Power," and a note saying, "Kill all the ns for Santa Claus." The other "appeared to be an oval-shaped insignia. At the top was 'LYNCH MOB' and at the bottom was 'WALLINGFORD CT.' In the middle was a noose and a fiery cross." The judge found Durham's presentation of the sketches more compelling than the reverend and sentenced Palmer to the maximum 63 months on federal weapons charges.

63) Durham is notorious for his fairness and objectivity, even receiving praise from Eric Holder and former CIA Director Michael Hayden.

But whether Durham is more accurately compared to a bull or a pussycat, he could bare his teeth. "One day he came storming into my office at the agency, almost yelling — which was very uncharacteristic for him — and he said something like, 'Bob, you're the only thing standing between the CIA and an FBI raid!' I was taken aback and surprised. He believed he was being jerked around by certain people at the agency, and it wasn't an entirely wrong belief. I ended up talking to him at length and then taking care of the problem."

Once he was investigating the destruction of the tapes, Durham didn't discuss his work with Mukasey. Durham worked on his probe for three years in methodical and exhausting fashion. Unnamed sources told the Washington Post that Durham brought CIA lawyers, operatives, and others before a federal grand jury and probed for inconsistencies in their accounts; some witnesses testified four or five times. As the attorney general recalls it, there was no issue with cooperation from the CIA; then-director Michael Hayden "was well aware of the need to cooperate and that Durham would act with scrupulous fairness. His conclusion — that no prosecution was warranted in the circumstances — was never disputed by anyone."

In August 2009, Attorney General Eric Holder expanded Durham's mandate to see if any CIA officials who used "enhanced interrogation techniques" should be charged with crimes. By June 2011, Durham recommended opening full criminal investigations regarding the death of two individuals while in United States custody at overseas locations, and closing the remaining matters. A year later, the Department of Justice decided not to press charges in those cases, either.

Holder declared that Durham had investigated every angle as thoroughly as humanly possible. "Mr. Durham and his team of agents and prosecutors have worked tirelessly to conduct extraordinarily thorough and complete preliminary reviews and investigations. I am grateful to his team and to him for their commitment to ensuring that the preliminary review and the subsequent investigations fully examined a broad universe of allegations from multiple sources. I continue to believe that our nation will be better for it."

The lack of criticism for Durham's decision in the CIA cases is a bit surprising, considering how routinely the agency was denounced by lawmakers, commentators, and activists, particularly at that

64) Durham refuses to discuss his cases with the press. He is not susceptible to outside influence and can't be rushed.

From all this, we can surmise a few things about Durham's ongoing investigation into the launch of the probe of Donald Trump and his potential connections to Russia during the 2016 campaign. Durham will not speak to the press at all until he is done, and probably not even then. He and his team are extremely unlikely to leak. He is not afraid to reach conclusions that will disappoint or frustrate Attorney General Barr or President Trump. He will not be rushed; there is no guarantee that Durham will reach any prosecutorial decisions before the 2020 elections. And he will investigate so extensively and thoroughly that no reasonable observer will be able to argue that something important was missed. As Sullivan describes Durham, "He will be in constant pursuit of the truth and the facts and the evidence. John doesn't take days off. He is methodical, but he is always working."

If Durham chooses to bring charges against any official who launched the Trump probe, history suggests he is extremely likely to persuade a jury to convict the accused and sustain those convictions upon appeal. And if he does not bring charges, it is extremely unlikely that any other prosecutor could have succeeded; regardless of what the official did, the evidence would not be there to convict or sustain a conviction.

John Durham's career is full of big, high-stakes, politically charged cases, but this one is the biggest, highest-stakes, and most politically charged of all. Luckily, it seems like his whole life has prepared him for this moment.

65) AG Barr indicated that Durham's investigation would not be rushed to appease anyone.

He predicted the investigation would "reach an important watershed" in late spring or early summer of 2020.

66) AG Barr will be interviewed by Laura Ingraham tonight. If any helpful informaton comes out of the interview, I'll add it to this thread.

CIA Document 1035-960: Foundation of a Weaponized Term

from Memory Hole: Reflections on Media and Politics

© Memory Hole Blog / James F. Tracy

originally published January 20, 2013

"Conspiracy theory" is a term that at once strikes fear and anxiety in the hearts of most every public figure, particularly journalists and academics. Since the 1960s the label has become a disciplinary device that has been overwhelmingly effective in defining certain events off limits to inquiry or debate. Especially in the United States raising legitimate questions about dubious official narratives destined to inform public opinion (and thereby public policy) is a major thought crime that must be cauterized from the public psyche at all costs.

Conspiracy theory's acutely negative connotations may be traced to liberal historian Richard Hofstadter's well-known fusillades against the "New Right." Yet it was the Central Intelligence Agency that likely played the greatest role in effectively "weaponizing" the term. In the groundswell of public skepticism toward the Warren Commission's findings on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the CIA sent a detailed directive to all of its bureaus. Titled "Countering Criticism of the Warren Commission Report," the dispatch played a definitive role in making the "conspiracy theory" term a weapon to be wielded against almost any individual or group calling the government's increasingly clandestine programs and activities into question.

This important memorandum and its broad implications for American politics and public discourse are detailed in a book by Florida State University political scientist Lance deHaven-Smith, Conspiracy Theory in America. Dr. deHaven-Smith devised the state crimes against democracy concept to interpret and explain potential government complicity in events such as the Gulf of Tonkin incident, the major political assassinations of the 1960s, and 9/11.

CIA Document 1035-960 was released in response to a 1976 FOIA request by the New York Times. The directive is especially significant because it outlines the CIA's concern regarding "the whole reputation of the American government" vis-à-vis the Warren Commission Report. The agency was especially interested in maintaining its own image and role as it "contributed information to the [Warren] investigation."

The memorandum lays out a detailed series of actions and techniques for "countering and Re speech by OREN FENTON POTITO, St. Petersburg, Florida, January 16, 1964.

On January 17, 1964 TP 100 PCI (RAC) furnished to SAs JAMES P. O'NEIL and JAMES E. WALLACE the following information:

On the evening of January 16, 1964 a dinner sponsored by OREN FENTON POTITO was held at Donat's Restaurant, 6001 Haines Road, North St. Petersburg, Florida. The dinner meeting was informal public in nature and approximately 41 persons were in attendance.

The source has identified POTITO as a member of the National States Rights Party (NSRP) in the Spring of 1963 at which time POTITO resigned while holding the office of National Organizer. Since that time POTITO has held meetings of a public nature under various titles all of which are non-existent organizations. He is not known to have any national affiliation at the present time although he is in contact with various leaders of right wing groups in the United States.

In the course of his speech of some 3 hours following the dinner POTITO touched on the association between LEE HARVEY OSWALD and RUBY.

POTITO identified RUBY, real name RUBENSTEIN, as a Communist Party Member since 1929 and through this connection linked him to OSWALD. He identified OSWALD as a Communist through his association with the Fair Play for Cuba Committee (FPCC).

According to POTITO only two organizations knew the route of the parade in Dallas on November 22, 1963 for any period of time prior to the parade and these two were the United States Secret Service and the Dallas Police Department. RUBY had insinuated himself into the Police Department circle, obtained the route and arranged with OSWALD to take the job at the state school building along the route to carry out the assassination.

POTITO said the "Surgeon General's report" on the assassination stated the first bullet entered the President's throat below the Adams apple clearly showing that two persons were involved with the first shot being fired from the bridge across the park way in front of the car. To further substantiate this, POTITO said there was a bullet hole in the wind shield of the President's car.
