FBI officials Lisa Page and James Baker resign

By Laura Jarrett and Josh Campbell, CNN
 Updated 9:15 AM ET, Sat May 5, 2018

Washington (CNN) — Two FBI officials who have faced scrutiny in recent months resigned from the bureau on Friday, sources familiar with their departures have confirmed to CNN.

Lisa Page, who served as an FBI lawyer and close adviser to former Deputy Director Andrew McCabe, voluntarily resigned Friday, a source close to Page told CNN.

Page came under increasing attack after her text messages with FBI special agent Peter Strzok criticizing President Donald Trump came to light last winter. She briefly served on special counsel Robert Mueller's team last summer before returning to her duties at the FBI.

The text messages between Strzok and her became fodder for the President and Republican lawmakers who leveled accusations that some members of the FBI working on the Russia probe are biased against Trump.

James A. Baker, the former general counsel for the FBI and one of former FBI Director James Comey's closest advisers, also resigned Friday, according to a source familiar with Baker's departure. A second source familiar with Baker's thinking said his departure was unrelated to Page's resignation and that hers came as a surprise to him. He left the FBI voluntarily, according to a person familiar with his departure.

<https://pbs.twimg.com/media/DccwWFqVMAE-Hst.jpg>

12) #Qanon said Lisa Page's testimony was received.

@TheLastRefuge2 has noted that Page was cooperating with investigators

Then she was fired.

Why was she fired?

Because she was a party to the corruption and when the investigation is over, her testimony is no longer needed.

"They are sat down, told to not do anything, say anything or discuss anything UNTIL they get an attorney. At which time, the attorney is handed a letter from the investigating unit. That letter says in essence, this is how screwed you are. If you want to be less screwed you will sign this letter of cooperation and assist us. When we don't need you, you sit there. When we do we will call you and you will provide what we need. Any deviation from this agreement lands you in jail for the full term."

If you stand back and look at all activity from July 2017 through March 2018 you can get a good feel for who is inside the "small group", who is cooperating and who is not.

♦COOPERATING GROUP – FBI Agent Peter Strzok, FBI/DOJ lawyer Lisa Page, DOJ Attorney Bruce Ohr, DOJ-NSD Deputy Asst. Attorney General George Toscas; FBI Chief Legal Counsel James Baker and Asst. FBI Director in charge of Counterintelligence Bill Priestap, are all still employed within the system. Strzok, Page, Ohr, and Baker have been removed from responsibilities, but there are still there. Bill Priestap is still in responsibility and still there.

♦NOT COOPERATING GROUP – FBI Communications Director Mike Kortan (quit), DOJ-NSD Deputy Asst. Attorney General David Laufman (quit), AG Loretta Lynch AAG Sally Yates, DOJ-NSD Asst Attorney General Mary McCord (quit), FBI Director James Comey (fired), Deputy

FBI Director Andrew McCabe (fired), FBI Director Chief-of-staff James Rybicki (quit).

13) The mass exodus of formerly cooperating FBI & DOJ employees signals the end of an investigation. Their services and testimonies are no longer needed so they were fired.

We will be moving next to the prosecution (JUSTICE) phase.

14) FBI Public Affairs Director Mike Kortan was fired but because he was cooperating with investigators, he was officially said to have "resigned." Now that the investigation is over, the truth can be told.

Leader Of Justice Department National Security Division On The Way Out

April 20, 2017 - 2:23 PM ET

CARRIE JOHNSON

The woman leading the Justice Department's investigation of foreign meddling into the 2016 election and possible ties between the Trump campaign and Russia has told staff members she will leave the department in May.

Mary B. McCord has served at the highest levels in the national security unit, either as its leader or chief deputy, for the past three years. A longtime federal prosecutor based in Washington, McCord easily won the confidence of both career lawyers and her supervisors inside the Justice Department.

McCord did not offer a public reason for her departure.

In a message to her staff earlier this week, she wrote that she did not make the decision easily, but she concluded "the time is now right for me to pursue new career opportunities."

Her exit leaves a huge vacancy at one of the Justice Department's most important divisions, at a time when the Trump administration is struggling to fill the ranks. Attorney General Jeff Sessions is the only leader

The news that Associate Attorney General Rachel Brand – the third-highest official in the Justice Department – is resigning after a little less than nine months in office to take a position with Walmart set off a double-barreled firestorm on social media Friday night. While assistant associate attorneys general typically do not make headlines, Brand's departure raises questions about who will succeed her and what her departure (and her replacement's selection) might portend for the future of special counsel Robert Mueller's investigation into Russian interference in the 2016 election.
