Friends Season 4 Ep 18. Chandler made the outlandish prediction that we'd never have a "President Joey."

It was funny at the time and, yet, here we are.

The language is Archi, a Northeast Caucasian language spoken by the Archis in the village of Archib, southern Dagestan, Russia, and the six surrounding smaller villages:

The first information about Archi language was a letter from Peter von Uslar to Franz Anton Schiefner dated June 11, 1863, which was published in the "Grammar of the Lak language" book as an appendix.^[6] Peter von Uslar tells an Archi legend about their language:

The God created nations and peoples; there were much less languages than peoples. The God was giving one shared language to several peoples, but all peoples were refusing to accept the most difficult language in the World, which finally became the language of the least numerous people in the World: Archi language and Archi people ^[12]

“Once a learned person wants to understand their submission the rulers are destroyed.”

Queen?

Something to that effect. I don't speak Archi. Doesn't help that it's technically not a written language.

How is the ruling power of the queen destroyed?

Let's look more closely at the playing card posted by @q.

On the top half of the card, the right eye of the queen is not in its normal orientation.

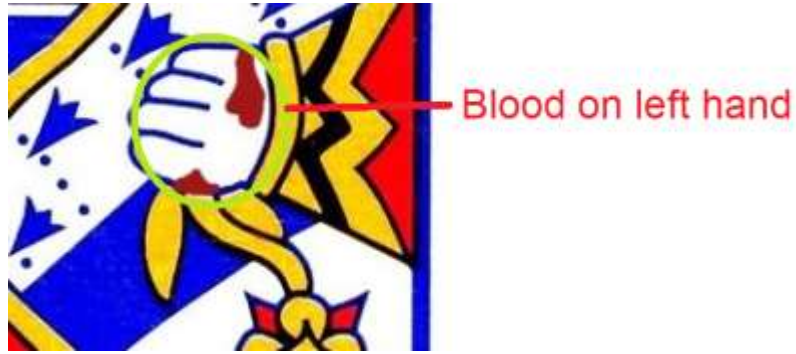

I recreated the effect on a normal playing card and found that the right eye had been flipped horizontally.

I also noted that the left eye is closed and there is a stray red line above and to the left of the queen's face.

There is also blood on the queen's left hand.

On the lower half of the card, I noticed that the nose and mouth are flipped vertically from their normal orientation.

If @q is telling us something through these artifacts, what do they mean?

What does it mean for a queen to “turn a blind eye?”

What does it mean to cross a “red line?”

What does it mean to have “blood on your hands?”

What does it mean to “flip?”
